Vol. 40 No. 50 | 60¢ Per Copy | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, October 21, 1995 | Four Sections | $25.00 Per Year

Harvest Better Than Expected

Corn and soybean harvest has kept farmers busy this week, and the question about what kind of yields the summer drought has allowed is being answered. In many areas, farmers are surprised at the yields. For example, in Lancaster County, some sections have recorded yields. County Extension Director John Schwartz said, "We have run the gamut. The southern end of the county was drier during the summer. Other parts have normal yields, and in the northcentral area, test plots have yielded over 200 bushels per acre, maybe even better than they have ever been. Yields depend on the rain you got during the summer," Schwartz said.

In Crawford County, Ray Kennerknecht, county agent, said yields are variable and not as good as last year. The earlier planted crops are better. This even showed in silage production with variable yields from field to field. Early beans are finishing with more than 40 bushels, but late beans are not very good.

Exporting Opportunities For The Dairy Farmer

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — All the talk about how the state's agricultural community is going to benefit from exporting raw or processed goods is nothing if there is no action.

Government officials and elected representatives helped create and get approved the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and the General Agreement on Tarrifs and Trade (GATT).

But in practice, pursuing a goal of exporting home-grown products isn't simple or necessarily easy.

Given that agriculture is the common basic foundation to the world's non-nomadic communities (and to extent even in nomadic communities), supplying agricultural commodities to outside communities can only be done if two conditions exist — demand and ability to pay.

Demand for specific commodities depends on local understanding, desire for the product and local ability to produce, process and distribute that commodity.

In other words, if there is to be success in selling a specific commodity, people to whom the seller wants to sell must want it and not be able to produce it easier or obtain it less expensively.

Ability to pay depends on local natural resources, its abundance and its value to outside communities, as well as the value of locally processed goods and services.

The two aspects work together (with many other factors) to characterize and individualize each specific market.

Experts therefore have been advising American agriculturalists

Young Farmers Ag Ed Coordinator: 'Reach Out To Urban, City People'

HAMBURG (Berks Co.) — "We as farmers keep to ourselves too much," said Richard Hoppes, newly appointed agricultural education coordinator for the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association.

"We need to broaden our scope and reach out to the urban and city people to let them know what we're doing," said Hoppes.

Hoppes, who raises grain on 220 tillable acres in Hamburg, emphasizes that the state Young Farmers Association, an affiliate of the National Young Farmer Educational Association, Inc., needs to branch out and provide education not only for its own people but for those who don't understand farming.

"We keep updating ourselves on our own education, but choose not to speak to people from urban areas about pesticide use, soil erosion, and other issues," he said.

Hoppes' involvement in the state association began in 1969 when he attended meetings of the local Kutztown Young Farmers Association. As a dairyman of the time, Hoppes first served as public relations director of the chapter, became chapter president, and then moved on to public relations director at the state level.

In 1977, Hoppes served as state president and became a delegate to

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
OCTOBER 18, 1995

Very good export business pushed wheat and corn bids moderately higher and soybean bids soared on fund buying. Wheat 4 to 12 cents higher. Corn steady to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 1 to 5 cents higher. Soybeans 3 to 7 cents higher. That old export optimism began working as Egypt purchased a substantial amount of Soft wheat overnight. Additional sales are pending as hopes continue to support wheat bids. Rains in wheat growing areas slowed planting somewhat and stronger corn and bean bids, underpinned bids. Corn traded lower again earlier in the day as traders opted for a second day of technical corrections to already high bids. However, very good export demand overnight from South Korea and light farmer selling gave corn bids a big boost upward. Early trading began with additional profit taking on the bean board but fund buying took over, pushing bean bids sharply higher. The possibility for rain in the Midwest and continued light farmer selling was also supportive to bids, despite the recent harvest progress. Bean meal demand was slightly stronger.

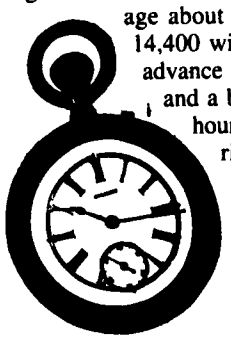
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

OCTOBER 23-29, 1995

UNITED NATIONS DAY, OCT. 24.

HOW LONG IS AN HOUR?

Daylight Saving Time ends at 2 A.M. on October 29. Turn the clocks back an hour — about the time it takes a hibernating groundhog to take a dozen breaths, or approximately the time it takes a human sperm to travel to the egg. The Earth will turn only 15 degrees on its axis during that extra hour, but on average about 6,000 people will die and over 14,400 will be born. A warm front could advance about 15 miles, a cold front, 20, and a bicycler (peddling at 5 miles per hour) could burn off about 250 calories. A dancer, especially if they did the jitterbug for an hour, could double that burnoff.



Time gives good advice.

— Maltese proverb

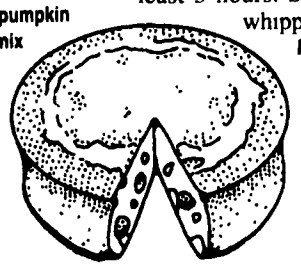
TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Store uncut garlic in a small open container. The odor will not transfer to other foods.

PUMPKIN CHEESECAKE

8 ounces cream cheese, softened
3/4 cup sugar
3 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon orange rind
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 16-ounce can pumpkin
1/2 cup biscuit mix
1/4 teaspoon each nutmeg, ginger, and vanilla

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Pour into a greased 9-inch pie pan, and bake at 350° F for 45 minutes. Chill at least 3 hours. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

St. Simon's (Oct. 28) is never dry.

A sunshiny shower Won't last an hour.

Sheep fight in their gambols before a change in the weather.

When pigs lie down for the night without covering themselves with litter, fine weather will continue.

OPINION

Good Works!

Good things about farm youth programs surfaced at the Manheim Fair FFA and 4-H livestock auction last Friday evening. Record total receipts were received by the young project owners. But the real story is about selling and reselling these animals to benefit community projects.

Hoss' Steak and Sea House bought the grand champion steer and donated the steer to be resold for 4-H and FFA projects. Stiegel Construction bought the steer the second time.

Casey High, owner of the grand champion steer, bought a lamb and had it resold to benefit the 4-H livestock judging team's travel fund.

The Seibert family bought a lamb and had it resold to benefit the FFA greenhouse building fund. Larry and Carol Huber and Ken Witmer got into the act as this lamb was resold two more times for the same cause.

But the gift with feeling was recorded when Katye Allen, who had been given a bottle lamb to raise by Kirt Diffenderfer, donated all the proceeds from the sale of her lamb to Clare House, a home in Lancaster for battered and abused women.

Without telling anyone, Dorothy Heistand came to the sale to buy this lamb and paid $9 a pound or a total of $846 in memory of her late husband Walter. Walter and Dorothy had been long-time 4-H leaders in the community.

A few tears were shed at the memory of Walter; the impact of the generosity of a little girl and her lamb, and the needs of the occupants of Clare House, spread over the consciousness of the crowded sale barn.

And before the emotions could quite calm down, it was announced that the gift lamb would be resold for additional support of the home. Lancaster Ford added another$258 to the fund for a total gift of more than $1,100.

Last week, our editorial focused on bad examples set by adults and youths in showing their livestock. This week we are happy to report that we saw some great examples of what's good about youth programs and the adults who lead them.

And these kinds of "good works" were not limited to Manheim. Over and over again during this fair season from June to October, charitable causes were supported by special donations from buyers at youth livestock project sales across our large coverage area.

To say "keep up the good works" seems a bit inadequate in light of all the good works that have been done. But we are going to say it anyway.

"Keep up the good works!"

To Watch For Moldy Feeds

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, warns us that moldy feeds may be a problem this year.

We had the right conditions around harvest time to cause mold growth, especially in corn. With mold growth comes mycotoxin formation.

Shirk also reminds us that feeding moldy feed may be very costly. It affects animals in various ways. Pigs, horses and poultry are more sensitive than ruminants. However, molds and mycotoxins can affect ruminants. Young, unhealthy and stressed animals are more susceptible.

For more information on moldy feeds and how to prevent and manage them, read Glenn Shirk's article in this week's Lancaster Farming.

Proper action now could prevent serious problems later.

To Know About Junk Science

A coalition of food and nutrition professionals and scientists concerned about the proliferation of reports that exaggerate and distort science have developed a list of 10 red flags to help people spot "junk" science.

According to Dr. Janet Hunt, chair of the Food and Nutrition Science Alliance, people may use these tips to evaluate reports on nutrition and health issues before jumping to premature conclusions.

These 10 red flags of junk science are:

1. Recommendations that promise a quick fix.
2. Dire warnings of danger from a single product.
3. Claims that sound too good to be true.
4. Simplistic conclusions drawn from a complex study.
5. Recommendations based on a single study.
6. Dramatic statements that are retuted by reputable scientific organizations.
7. Lists of "good" and "bad" foods.
8. Recommendations made to help sell a product.
9. Recommendations based on studies published without peer review.
10. Recommendations from studies that ignore differences among individuals or groups.

To Keep Heifers From First Calf Heifers

Beef herds on heifer AI programs are finding that the replacement heifers retained from first calf heifers provide the best genetics, combined with low birth weight EPDs and high maternal value, according to Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent.

Since these heifers are sired by calving ease sires, a majority of them will reduce frame size and be earlier maturing than heifers from mature cows.

If your management is on target, these heifers will often be the older ones, ready to breed before the main cow herd.

In fact, one common mistake producers may make is selecting heifers on adjusted weaning weights, often ending up with many young heifers in their replacement group. These heifers could be 45 days younger than the majority of your calf crop and may not reach puberty in time to breed them ahead of the cow herd.

By choosing older heifers, you can avoid these problems and keep your replacements from the cows who calved first.

Good replacement heifers are certainly worth the expense of raising them. Knowing the genetic potential of the heifers and cows in your herd can help make important selection and culling decisions.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Recognize your unique gifts and strive to maximize their use."

WHAT, NO FAVORITES?

WHAT, NO FAVORITES?
October 22, 1995

Background Scripture:
Acts 10:1-11:18
Devotional Reading:
Acts 10:9-23

Some of us may not mind so much that God accepts others into his kingdom besides us and our kind, but it is disconcerting to learn that God has no favorites. At least that's what Peter tells us: "Truly I perceive that God shows no partiality, but in every nation any one who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him" (10:34,35).

And if you read these same verses in the Jerusalem, Moffat, and New English versions, it seems even clearer: "I now see how true it is that God has no favorites . . ." (NEB). Well, of course, we all know that, don't we?

But do we really believe it? Isn't favoritism what attracts some to a particular religious group — the opportunity to become God's favorites, to have the inside track, to stand in some special relationship with our creator? On a conscious level we would deny that, but this expectation often shows up in our unconscious attitudes.

"ALL THE PEOPLE"

For Peter this was a shocking discovery. As a Jew, he counted himself as one of God's chosen people. That conviction couldn't help but affect his thinking, as well as most of the first Christians. It was one thing to tolerate Gentiles among the followers of Jesus, but that didn't mean that Peter and the others accepted them as full-fledged disciples.

From our vantage point of time we can see how wrong they were, that the good news of Jesus Christ was not just for the Jews but for all people — just as the angels at his birth had proclaimed, "I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people" (Luke 2:10b), and Jesus had commanded after his resurrection, "Go and make disciples of all nations . . ." (Matt. 28:19).

Yes, we are hardly in a position to condemn them, for Christians since then have hardly compiled a more attractive record. History reminds us of those painful episodes wherein Jews were hated and persecuted as "the killers of Christ." Most of us can remember when churches barred their doors to African Americans and when Protestants and Roman Catholics regarded each other as "the enemy" instead of "brothers and sisters." Of course, some of these prejudices still plague the Church.

ENLIGHTENED?

Today, some are as surprised as Peter was when they find that pastoral gifts fall upon women as well as men. It was only 40 years ago — a long or short period of time depending upon your point of view — that I was ordained. I thought then that I was very enlightened, but I must admit that I never dreamed in those days that there would ever be women clergy. It seemed part of God's great plan to keep that calling as an exclusive enclave for men.

No matter how reluctant Peter was to accept this message from God, we can appreciate what it cost him to acknowledge: "if then God gave the same gift to them as he gave to us . . ., who was I that I could withstand God? (11:17). That's what we must realize, too: to exclude other people on the basis that they are different from us, that their ways are strange to us, or that we have always believed that they were in some way inferior to us, means nothing less than withstanding God — a fearful position for any follower of Jesus Christ!

Even Peter's listeners had to acknowledge that: "When they heard this (Peter's testimony) they were silenced. And they glorified God . . ."

And so may we all.

Solve Next Spring's Weed Problems More Economically And Effectively This Fall With Roundup® Herbicide

Why does Roundup work better in the fall?

In fall a perennial weed begins to store energy below the ground. This enables the weed to survive until next spring. Because the weed is working to move energy towards the roots, and roundup is translocated to the roots, you get the best control of the entire plant. In the fall Roundup can be applied pre-harvest in soybeans, and after harvest of corn, set aside acres and many other ways.

Remember . . . Roundup can be sprayed after a light frost.

Finally, a practical way to apply organic mulch to row crops

Organic mulch is the natural way to suppress weeds, help retain soil moisture, and improve soil conditions. Trouble is, hand mulching takes too much time and effort. Now the Millcreek Row Mulcher makes it easy and affordable to mulch berries, grapes, fruit trees, and other row crops. One operator can mulch an acre in just a couple hours depending on conditions.

Spread A Variety of Materials, Including Lime

You can spread all types of stemless flowable mulches, such as wood chips, sawdust, chopped bark, even compost, with plenty of clearance to avoid plant damage. Plus, the Millcreek Row Mulcher is ideal for banding lime and other materials requiring lighter applications. The optional metering gate gives you complete control of the coverage so you can tailor applications to best suit your cultivation practices. With the labor-saving versatility you get with the Millcreek Row Mulcher, you may even find new techniques to grow better crops.

For Small Growers
This may be the affordable machine you've been looking for to mulch berries, grapes, and other row crops. Think of the labor you'll save.

For Commercial Growers
Choose from 3.1, 4.5, and 6.8 cubic yard capacities. Or call to discuss your special requirements.

One "Farm-Tough" Machine
With our own farming background, we take great satisfaction in building affordable machines for growers like you who need reliable, trouble-free equipment to help increase production and keep costs down. That's just what the Millcreek Row Mulcher will do for you. Call today.

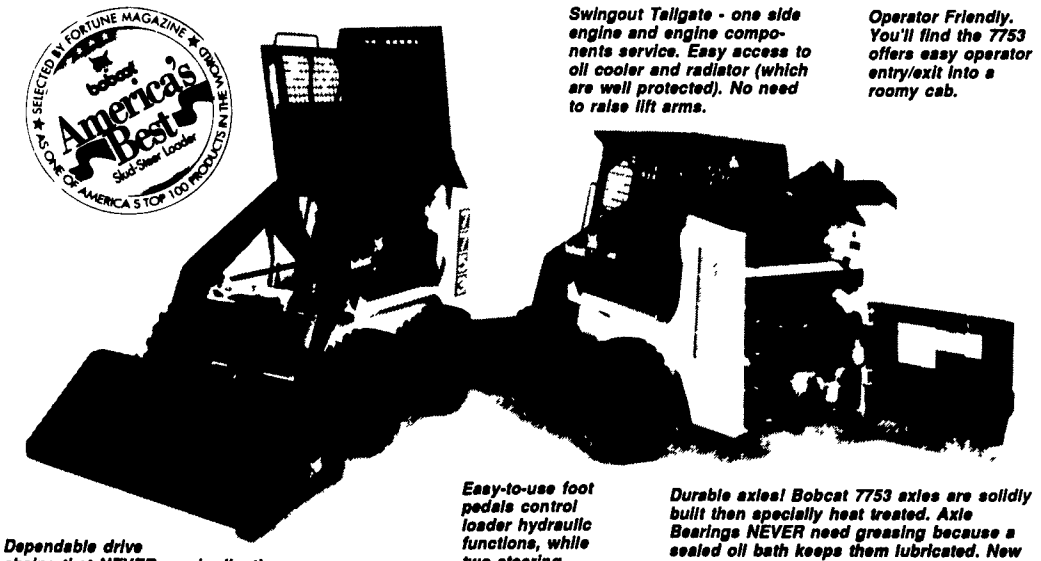
Bobcat 7753 Long-Wheelbase Skid-Steer Loader

It's What's Inside That Counts!



Swingout Tailgate - one side engine and engine components service. Easy access to oil cooler and radiator (which are well protected). No need to raise lift arms.

Operator Friendly. You'll find the 7753 offers easy operator entry/exit into a roomy cab.

Dependable drive chains that NEVER need adjusting. The "bow tie" design uses prestressed, heavy-duty drive chains in two short continuous loops per side. That means long-life in the most rugged use and NO periodic, time-consuming drive chain adjustments.

Easy-to-use foot pedals control loader hydraulic functions, while two steering levers allow precise maneuverability.

Durable axles! Bobcat 7753 axles are solidly built then specially heat treated. Axle Bearings NEVER need greasing because a sealed oil bath keeps them lubricated. New axle hub design protects axle seal from damage from wire or twine. Hub is easily removed if service is required.

Experience America's Best.
Melroe company has over 30 years of skid-steer loader experience – longer than anyone else. That's one of the reasons Fortune Magazine has twice recognized the Bobcat loader as one of the 100 products "America Builds Best."

Reliable Components.
Other than a few daily checks and fills, you can rely on the PERFORMANCE of the 7753 Bobcat. It has been designed and built with durability and low maintenance in mind.

Great Serviceability!
The Bobcat 7753 has been designed to be serviced quickly For example, there's single-side access to the transversely-mounted engine, a lift-out oil cooler for easy cleaning and a tip-up cab to expose hydraulic and hydrostatic compon- entry. For repairs, the exclusive BOSS® System can help quickly diagnose system problems. These features, along with a factory-trained service technicians and "top-shelf" parts availability, mean your loader can be back on the job in no time.

TOTAL HAND CONTROL!
Dealer-Installed Option!

- Easy Wrist-Action Control.
- Push-Button Auxiliary Hydraulics For Total Hand Control. (Available only on 50 Series loaders. 40 Series loaders utilize foot pedal to activate auxiliary hydraulics.)
- Easy-Grip Handle.

Banquet Honors Lancaster 4-H Leaders

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Superior 4-H Award winner Kirsten Kauffman remembers when one third grader she spoke to at an elementary school in Penn Manor recently asked her if there was a 4-H club for those who like to jump from airplanes and "air surf."

Kirsten told the third grader that while there weren't any clubs that featured skydiving from airplanes in Lancaster County, the fact that 4-H clubs exist in which they could join to pursue their hobbies "got their attention," she said.

On Thursday evening Kirsten was recognized as the 1994 Superior Award Winner at the Lancaster County 4-H Leaders Banquet at Millersville University.

Kirsten joined about 60 other leaders — together with many supporters, families, and friends — at a night to recognize the achievements of the 4-H club leaders in Lancaster County.

Kirsten, 17, daughter of Ken and Margaret Kauffman, Elizabethtown, spoke of her recent experiences in speaking to elementary school children about the benefits of joining 4-H.

Last week, she spoke to third graders of the Penn Manor school district. "They were all fired up over the programs, finding all the things they can do, asking about hobbies," she said. Kirsten is scheduled to speak at the upcoming Lancaster Farmland Trust banquet.

The Saddle Cinches and Horse Project member said that speaking one day to elementary school and then next to Trust members presents challenges. The Elizabethtown High School senior, who serves as copy editor of the school yearbook, the Elizabethan, will attend college, possibly to study journalism.

Kirsten said she wants to return someday as a 4-H leader in the horse programs in the county.

FEEDING THE DAIRY HERD

In order for the cows to do their best, they need lots of a high quality, balanced ration. Let's consider what this statement means in three separate parts.

"Lots of" means the cows always have feed in front of them, whether it is on pasture or in the barn. If the pasture has nothing but stubble left, and we decide they have to clean that up before we move them to another paddock, then they do not have "lots of" feed. When it got so dry this summer, our six acres of pasture weren't growing much, so unless we took feed out to the cows, they spent much of the time without "lots of" feed. The same is true if the cows are in the barn, and we don't want to clean troughs out that still have feed in them.

As a rule of thumb, we like to have between 5% and 10% feed left over. In other words, we feed 40 lbs. silage, 15 lbs. haylage, 7 lbs. hay, and 30 lbs. grain or a total of 92 lbs. for 10 cows, or an average of 9.2 lbs. (between 5 and 10 lbs.) per cow. That may seem like a lot of work and feed, but if there is less than that, there are times when some of the cows have almost nothing in front of them, so they don't eat as much as they need for maximum production. Have you ever walked into a dairy that is averaging over 20,000 lbs. of milk (65 lbs. a day) and seen a lot of empty feed troughs?

When we talk about "high quality" feed, does that mean pasture stubble? Does it mean hay that was mowed late? Does it mean rained-on or moldy hay? Definitely not. "High quality" feed is feed that tastes good to the cows, such as lush pasture, early cut hay, or good corn silage. It also doesn't just fill up the cow's rumen without providing any nutrients the cows need in their diets.

"Balanced ration" means having enough protein, energy, fiber, vitamins and minerals in the right proportion to meet the cows' basic needs. Having too much or too little of any of these ingredients in the ration will keep the cows from producing as much milk as they could and will sometimes cause health problems.

For example, simply giving a high producing cow more grain to get her production up even higher will backfire if it throws the ration out of balance. Often what happens when farmers feed too much grain is the energy level goes up, and if it's not in the right proportion with the protein and fiber levels, the cow will get acidosis or ketosis and her production goes down. Also some of the grain just passes through the cow undigested. So not only is the farmer spending more money for feed, he is also losing money on shipping less milk.

Thus, giving the dairy herd lots of a high quality, balanced ration means having nutritious, tasty, and correctly proportioned feed in front of the cows at all times. It may seem like more work and expense, but it will mean more profit in the long run.

We invite readers to send their comments and questions to us through the Lancaster Farming office. We are writing this column in the hope that we all can learn from each other by exchanging ideas and experiences openly.

Here is a letter we received, followed by our response:

"I would suggest to the editor to get more information in your paper about grazing. I have been down both roads, grazing and conventional dairying, and I can't understand how people can be so blind. Many still think this grazing is a joke. It's by a long shot no joke. Five years of grazing, and I can easily see that grass is better for the cows and the pocketbook.

But what do you feed in the winter, people say. Hay, grain and corn silage is hard on the cows' health. [The column writer] mentioned forage planning for the coming year and that his feed man said it's cheaper to feed corn silage than hay at $110 per ton and soybean meal at $220. I'm afraid this feed man wants to sell his feed. I think if farmers would not ask their feed man so much, many would be better off. If a farmer feeds no corn silage, just hay and grain, he needs very little protein, which makes the feed people frown. When cows are on grass and clover, they need no protein, and you can still maintain a 17-18,000 lb. herd average, which is highly profitable. An average herd of 40 cows could be fed for $1,000 per month cheaper than most people do. A lot of people don't believe it, but it's true. Another thing about the difference between picking corn or making silage you didn't mention is that an ag bagger will take a big chunk of that $1,000 plus [cause] more health problems — to me no gain.

A Satisfied Grazier"

Response: Although we presently are not "graziers," we are interested in learning more about it. We are a young family with quite a bit of debt yet, and because of that we like to make sure we understand as much as possible before making a major change.

Our neighbors and friends who are grazing their dairy herd tell us several things:

(1) It takes more management than conventional feeding does because the quality changes almost daily, and the amount of feed per paddock varies greatly. Although there may be less physical work involved, it takes other management skills that most of us weren't taught, and the result may be disappointing unless we can find someone who is willing to teach us.

(2) There is nothing magic about grazing. Those who did well managing a conventional feeding system appear to be doing well with grazing. At certain times of the year, you may have a high protein, low fiber ration, and at other times you may have a low protein, high fiber ration, so you need to adjust for that.

(3) Costs usually are lower. We wonder how much lower the costs really are, as it seems that most of my neighbors who switched to grazing had been using high cost feed programs including lots of "super minerals." Of course, grazing was much cheaper than these programs. How does grazing compare to other feed programs in which feed costs are lower than $4.25 per cwt. of milk with a 70-lb. year round average?

We find the grazing concept interesting, but we have a lot of questions yet. Some of them are:

(1) With 90 acres of land how many cows and heifers could I feed?

(2) My brother and I share equipment costs. If we would go with all hay and no corn equipment, would that be a profitable way to gradually get into grazing?

Grange Toy Contest Displays Efforts To Improve Lives

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—For the 19th consecutive year the Women's Activities Department of the Pennsylvania State Grange is sponsoring its stuffed toys contest.

But this just isn't any contest.

In fact, the stuffed toy contest has evolved into something more than just another competition. It isn't about winning awards or accolades from peers. Or even being the best.

The only winners in this "Labor of Love" are the children who receive these toys. When nearly 1,000 Grangers from around the state descend upon Mercer County for the 123rd annual Pa. State Grange convention, they'll bring with them nearly 10,000 toys to be judged and then distributed to Ronald McDonald Houses, ambulance services, children's hospitals and other needy charities.

Most of the toys will be distributed to sevices located in the region of the host counties—Beaver, Lawrence and Mercer. The stuffed toys program is sponsored by Fairfield Processing.

"These Grangers are more interested in toys for loving than toys for judging," Becky Michalka, Women's Activities director of the state Grange, said. "There were 8,975 toys made last year and according to the reports I've been receiving there is going to be a substantial increase this year."

The toys, however, won't be the only labor of love on display in the Radisson Hotel's Ballroom in West Middlesex. Over 1,000 baby quilts for HIV-positive and crack-addicted babies will be stacked to the ceiling.

"The ABC Quilts for AIDS babies is designed to make their lives a little more comfortable," Michalka said, "because many of these babies won't live to see their second birthday."

In addition to the toys and quilts, Grangers make clothing times for nursing homes, prepare food that is donated to food banks, cut soup labels for charitable groups and develop kits containing personal care products that are distributed to abused women shelters, to name a few.

Michalka said being involved in these projects raises awareness among Grange members. "We have whole families that participate in these projects together," Michalka said. "By participating together as a family, it makes them aware of the problems in their communities and that families, by working together, can do something about these problems and make their communities a better place to live."

The Pennsylvania State Grange is an agricultural, rural and community service organization that is dedicated to making Pennsylvania a better place to live. There are over 33,000 members in the largest and oldest farm family organization in the state that is the legislative voice on agricultural and rural issues in Harrisburg.

"Offering Milk Urea Nitrogen Testing (MUN) to Pennsylvania producers gives them a valuable tool to monitor two of the most important aspects of their dairy operation-nutrition balance and reproduction. Exporting Opportunities For The Dairy Farmer to alter their perspective of the export market.

While the United States agricultural industry exports large quantities of commodities and goods, for the most part, it has done so in a system that treats the export market as a secondary market to absorb domestic overproduction.

The message that export-advisors have been promoting is for agriculture to treat its export markets as critical and worthy of investment in time, marketing dollars and relationship building.

Experts advise that those seeking to expand their businesses into the exporting arena need to develop relationships with competent people in other areas of the world.

But even more than that, those who wish to export must do some homework.

Essential information to seek includes knowing who will buy what, where, when and how, and for how much.

The effort is pretty much still in its infancy, though a major priority of state Gov. Tom Ridge and his administration, according to their statements.

The state Department of Commerce has an exporting agency, but it doesn't deal with agricultural products.

The state Department of Agriculture helps mostly with the exporting of processed agricultural products and foods, such as ice cream, chips, pretzels. (One official noted a sense of pride in the fact that Pennsylvania pretzels are being sold in Bavaria.)

For all the government programs designed to affect agriculture, exporting is largely described as a middle-man run industry, supported by some export enhancement, otherwise known as subsidies, and through assistance in negotiating and filing proper documents.

Individual dairy cattle breeders seeking to break into exporting can expect to discover that it requires luck, but as much studying and researching as possible to reduce the need for luck.

William C. Nichol, executive director of the Pennsylvania Holstein Asscciation, State College, is considered a pioneer in exporting cattle from Pennsylvania.

Through his workings in the breed organization over the years, relationships have been developed, procedures have been learned and adopted, and a lot of Pennsylvania Holsteins have been shipped to various and wide parts of the world.

For many family farm operations, offering to sell some stock that qualifies for a Pa. Holstein Association export order has been the extent of contact with exporting.

For others who have valuable stock, but don't wish to sell it directly, marketing fertilized embryos, bulls or semen through dealers, such as exists within the veterinary and artificial insemination industry, has been the path taken.

As far as exporting live animals, breed organizations and private concerns are important. The marketing of dairy cattle genetics is possible primarily through the solid reputation established by the breed organizations with the help of the USDA.

The equally strong aspects of testing through the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and all the affiliates, the strength of the indexing, and classifying have all given dairy cattle breeders the resources with which to develop desirable lines of cattle and the ability to continue it.

For those wishing to sell cattle through the Pa. Holstein Association, understand that they constantly keep track of breeding decisions through registrations, or know of desirable combinations and have an idea of the value and overhead necessary to eventually get a deal made whereby a customer is satisfied as well as the supplier.

Of course, each breeder has his or her own theories of what is important to him, and makes decisions based on that.

But if exporting cattle is a desire, then it may require some changes or additions to the home operation.

Consultants may have to be used, higher veterinary costs associated with tighter biosecurity and health checks may come into play, as well as more record keeping and housekeeping, higher telephone bills and more hours describing the farm.

According to some, the added attention to detail is difficult because of other priorities or interests.

However, it almost seems as those who have been succeeding in exporting, even on an interstate basis, approach it with interest and desire to succeed and learn and grow.

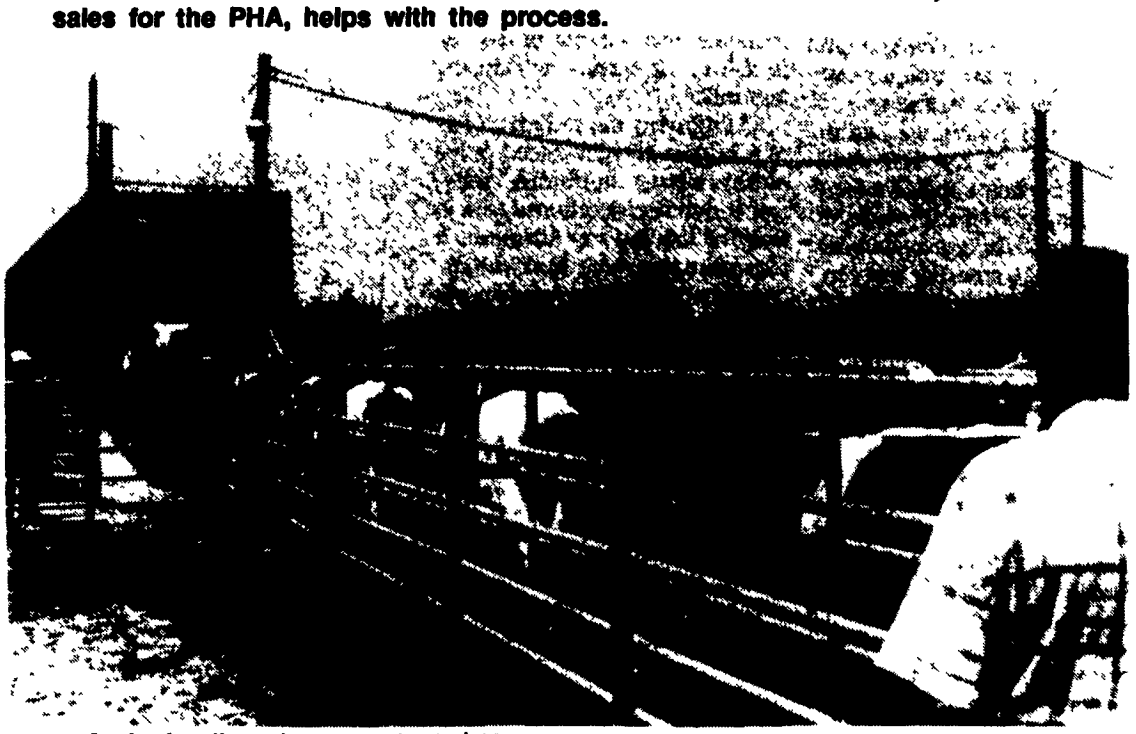
William Allen is director of sales for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association and works out of the PHA Middletown farm. The farm is located near the Harrisburg airport and cattle can be flown out of there or trucked to a port if ocean voyage is the passage.

It's also conveniently located for access to major state and interstate highways.

Allen has worked with Nichol for three years.

(Turn to Page A25)

In the yard of the Pa. Holstein Association Middletown farm, a representative (on the left) of buyers from the Republic of Korea (South Korea) makes last minute checks and selections of bred heifers that will fill his order while William Allen, director of sales for the PHA, helps with the process.



At the loading chutes at the Pa. Holstein Association Middletown Farm, a load of registered bred heifers is counted and loaded. Chuck Russow, a USDA veterinarian who checks paperwork and health records and overlooks the animals being shipped walks down the line on the right, while haulers monitor cattle movement onto the trailer.

The trailer loaded with registered bred heifers heads out of the Pa. Holstein Association Middletown Farm for export to the Republic of Korea (South Korea).

Exporting Opportunities

Previous to that, Allen worked for Farm Credit, where he said he became "appreciative of the financial challenges they have to face and sort of better understand that end of the business, and I'm more conscious of their bottom line."

On behalf of the association, Allen buys and sells cattle on the farm, cattle is kept on the farm to show to prospective buyers, to hold consignment sales, and to conduct exporting.

"It's sometimes it seems to be a feast or famine market," Allen said. "You can't plan far ahead — 30 to 60 days to round up cattle. And normally our export time is late fall and early spring."

Those times of the year are used because of ease of travel on the animals and transportation availability.

Allen said time and method of transportation makes a big difference depending on where a load of cattle is destined.

Further, he said Holstein breeders should know that most buyers want heifers to be three to seven months pregnant at the time of shipment.

"It's tough to breed for that, because you don't always have a lot of advance notice," he said.

"We try to make our members aware of what's on the horizon," he said. Information channels include notices to members, advertisements, to board memebers to pass on, and through county directors.

They are told what to anticipated and what possibilities exist.

"Most of our business is with registered animals," Allen said. "Through doing that, we try to add value through registered cattle, and that way we help provide and find more markets for our members to hopefully find another source of income and increase merchandising income."

According to Allen, the individual dairy cattle breeder would do well to start by talking to a county director.

"We deal with people on a regular basis who have heifers for sale, we have sales representatives who help procure these animals in each part of the state," he said.

Other cattle breed organizations offer similar services, such as the Jersey Marketing Service, Brown Swiss Enterprises, etc.

"There are other organizations involved in marketing specific breeds of cattle," Allen said, "we deal only in Holsteins."

Allen said that health requirements can be strigent, and solid record keeping is necessary.

"Each country has it's own health requirements negotiatied by representatives of each country. (Those requirements) vary. Some are more difficult to meet, but it's real important to have them as realistic as posisble. We want to ship healthy cattle of course, but the more stringent those restrictions, it's tougher to gather the cattle.

"Accurate records are important," he said, "as far as breeding, milk production, pregnancies, and accurate registration papers."

Further, the individual desiring to sell cattle has to decide to not be shy about letting potential buyers know about the quality of animal being bred, even if it isn't top-of-the line genetics. According to Allen there are markets for pedigree registered Holsteins with good commercial production value.

Without the pedigree, and records, the value of the animal is lost to the breeder.

"It depends on what type of cattle you're looking to merchandise," Allen said. "PHA does some business with Japanese buyers and they are looking for high quality to contract for bull mothers and to breed," he said.

Those animals can be found by outside interests through reviewing USDA rankings and records and other records.

"A lot of animals are found through those resources," Allen said, but other ways to let the world know what's on the farm include word-of-mouth, direct advertising and other forms of promotion. Some people find showing animals helps display the quality of animals being bred and the abilities of the breeder.

"You have to let people know what you got," he said.

"Other buyers want (cattle) more for a commercial setup rather than breeding purposes. In that, you have to let people be more aware of what you have."

Overall, Allen said that exporting is working for Holstein breeders who are participating and that it is something for the average Holstein breeder to consider.

"I think, for your average dairyman, it's another source of income and other avenue to merchandise cattle. It's a very positive thing.

"U.S. Holsteins are in demand worldwide. We have superior genetics here and that's a valuable asset to our dairy industry and people appreciate the quality of genetics developed here. I think that's going to continue."

For more information on exporting Holsteins, call the state office at (814) 234-0364, or contact a county director.

For more information on exporting other dairy cattle breeds, contact representatives of those organizations.

Dairylea Reports Year Of Growth

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Dairylea Cooperative, Inc. celebrated a year of accomplishments at its 1995 annual meeting held Oct. 10 and 11 in Liverpool, N.Y.

"Without a doubt, the past year was our best one yet in carrying out our mission statement," announced Dairylea Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith.

"Our mission statement articulates the purpose of our efforts," said Smith. "Dairylea will be farmer-driven. We will seek to maximize net returns at the farm by preserving and enhancing milk markets and milk marketing relationships, and by providing services and farm programs that create economic value."

More than 750 member-farmers and industry guests attended the two-day event, which included Smith's presentation and an annual address by Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford.

During his presentation, Smith reported that the Cooperative had an annual profit of $1,169,606. Tax-paid retained earnings grew 27 percent or $769,031, which Smith remarked, "provides support for Dairylea's aggressive, long-term milk marketing strategies."

Additionally, milk sales grew to $486 million, according to Smith, increasing by more than $76 million, or nearly 19 percent, over 1994. Premiums paid to members, over the blend price, totaled close to $9.8 million, up 14 percent from the previous year.

Dairylea had 237 farms join the Cooperative in the past year. Member milk production grew substantially to 3.28 billion pounds, an increase of approximately 18 percent.

"We anticipate milk marketing measuring 4 billion pounds annually for the current year and more than 5 billion pounds in 1996," Smith said.

In outlining Dairylea's accomplishments of 1995—which included some new and expanding relationships with other dairy businesses in the region—Smith said: "We must continue to work together to create efficiencies, which will ultimately impact the profitability of all sectors of the industry—from the farm to the store."

Smith discussed Dairylea's assuming the role of securing a viable future for dairying in the Northeast, but said, "Our best efforts are concentrated on becoming a strong and reliable partner with our members in their farming operations.

"We are very proud of the past year's accomplishments, but are even more excited about the possibilities and opportunities to serve members in the years to come."

During his presentation, Rutherford expressed his pride in Dairylea's performance, stating that a strong cooperative benefits its members in many ways.

"When I measure the performance of our Cooperative, I not only think of the competitiveness of our milk price, but I track the value that our programs and services bring to our members—both economically and to their quality of life," Rutherford said.

In reviewing industry developments, Rutherford discussed the 1995 Farm Bill debate. "The goal of this national policy should be to maximize the opportunities for the profitability of every milk producer in America, while best positioning the industry for the challenges and opportunities of the next century."

Due to the regionalism that exists within the industry, politics and other influencing factors, a consensus on federal policy could not be reached, according to Rutherford.

"Today there is substantial talk in Washington on total deregulation of the dairy industry. We firmly believe that this will be detrimental to everyone," Rutherford explained. "It will lead to chaotic milk marketing and ultimately pit farmer against farmer."

In addition, Rutherford talked about the positive results of dairy promotion efforts and the opportunities for the dairy industry in the international marketplace.

During the meeting, members and guests had the opportunity to attend information sessions on herd health, farm safety and fixed price forward contracting. Jim Barr, chief executive officer of the National Milk Producers Federation gave an up-to-the-minute presentation on the 1995 Farm Bill.

Additionally, award presentations to Dairylea's top quality milk producers, 50-year members, and Fred H. Sexauer Award winners were made at the annual family banquet.

Dairylea is a Syracuse-based dairy cooperative with more than 2,400 member-farms throughout the Northeast. It markets nearly 4 billion pounds of milk annually and participates and is invested in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Sheep Symposium Cancelled

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The annual Pennsylvania Sheep Symposium, scheduled for Oct. 27-29 at the Lebanon Fairgrounds, has been cancelled.

According to Pa. Sheep and Wool Growers President Joe Vogel, there were insubstantial numbers of registrations to hold the event.

The planning committee is working to set another date and location for the annual event in 1996.

Berks Extension Reviews Year's Accomplishments

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — In recapping the year's activities of the Berks County Cooperative Extension Association, Judith Schwank, director, said that the extension's goal is to educate and to gain knowledge to put to work everyday.

Exactly how the extension's goal is carried out was presented to more than 200 who attended the annual banquet on Monday night. It was the 81st annual meeting, which was held in the Berks County Agricultural Center in Leesport.

The program included a synopsis of the work each of the staff members do throughout the year.

In working with the master gardener's program, Schwank established a horticultural therapy program at the Berks Women in Crisis shelter. With the help of summer intern Olga Cosme, the extension developed ways to work with Hispanic clientel.

Jonda Crosby, Regional Infrastructure to Sustain Agriculture (RISA) project associate, worked on projects with innovative farm practices that address farm issues. Two grower-only markets were established as an outlet for produce.

Debbie Dietrich, dairy and livestock agent, began a 4-H pet club to teach children responsible pet care.

Rick Kauffman, 4-H coordinator, oversaw the 4-H Fashion Revue. Winners in the county provided a fashion show as part of the entertainment at the annual meeting.

Clyde Myers, dairy-livestock agent, sought solutions for fly control other than using pesticides.

Fay Strickler, extension home economist, provided leadership to the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program, instructed day care providers, provided parenting resources, and taught safe food-handling courses.

Mena Hautau, agronomy-agriculture agent, researched mushroom compost used to grow field corn. Intensive grazing programs and field days were held.

Stephen Krupa, president of the board of directors, said that despite the extension's long-term work in the area, some confusion exists. Those unacquainted with extension services are not aware what it represents.

The board will concentrate on establishing a "signature." He asked, "Who are we? Are we Berks County Agricultural Extension? Are we Penn State Extension? What does Cooperative Extension mean?"

Krupa thanked the three county commissioners in attendance for their strong support of extension services.

Schwank spoke of the changes spurred by a civil rights assessment of extension services. She said, "In order to continue, the program must continue to change and evolve. We are on the road to excellence and will continue to change to be more relevant."

Board member nominees elected by an unanimous ballot board include Pheobe Bitler, Carol Duncan, Larry Eshelman, Nipa Hammond, and Erica Davis.

Newly elected board members for the Berks County Extension are Nipa Hammond, Carol Duncan, Judy Schwank, Erica Davis, Larry Eshelman, and Karen Mohn.

Foot Problems Topic Of Barn Meeting

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—There is a lot of truth in the statement that a cow is only as good as her feet and legs.

Foot problems are a concern of many dairy farmers, and a barn meeting has been scheduled to discuss these problems.

The barn meeting will be held at 1 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 27 at the farm of Gordon Hoover, Gap. The farm is located at 165 Cambridge Rd., about 3/4 mile north of Route 340.

The purpose of the barn meeting is to help dairy farmers learn more about foot structure, weight distribution, foot infections and diseases, corrective and preventive trimming, and general hoof care. The presentations and demonstrations will be given by Penn State veterinarian Dale Moore and by Myron Nolt, a hoof trimmer from Peach Bottom.

Manheim Youth Livestock Sale Exceeds Last Year's Record

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The youth livestock sale at the close of the Manheim Fair last Friday evening featured the participation of many local businesses in the bidding for a fast-paced auction of 19 goats; 102 hogs; 29 lambs, and 20 steers. The grand total, to the amazement of sale officials, exceeded last year's record total by nearly $3,000.

The goats averaged $2.04 per pound; the hogs, $2.14; the lambs, $2.81, and the steers, $1.47, to make a total this year of $106,727.

In the goat sale, Jodi Gebhard sold her champion to Manheim Auto Auction for $4.25 per pound for a total of $429.25 on the 101 pound lamb.

Jacey Fisher's reserve champion goat brought $2.25 per pound for a total of $240.75 from Lebanon Valley National Bank.

Several other goats brought $6. Amanda Grube sold her lightweight champion for $6 per pound to Sensenig Construction, Manheim; Brian Geib sold his lamb for $6 per pound to Conestoga Auction Service, Manhiem, for $6 per pound, and Joel Geib sold his lamb for $6.25 per pound, also to Conestoga Auction for $6.25.

Manheim Auto Auction also bought both the grand champion hog and the reserve grand champion steer. They paid $6 per pound for Derick Bollinger's 261 pound hog for a total of $1,566. And they bought Melissa Becker's 1205 pound reserve champion steer at $3.75 for a total of $4,518.75.

Hoss' Steak and Sea House bought Casey High's grand champion steer for $4 per pound and a total of $5,108. They donated the steer back to be resold with half the proceeds to go to 4-H and half to go to FFA. Stiegel Construction, Manheim, bought the champion the second time for $1.25 per pound to make a total of $1,596.25.

Hoss' also bought the reserve champion lamb for $4.50 per pound or a total of $963.

The reserve grand champion hog shown by Jonathan Haldeman sold for $3 per pound to Philips Ford, Manheim, for a total of $2,286 on the 254 pound hog.

The grand champion lamb sold for $5.50 per pound to Speedwell Construction, Manheim, for a total of $698.50.

Of special significance, Katye Allen, who had been given a bottle lamb to raise by Kirt Diffenderfer, Manhiem, donated all the proceeds from the sale of her lamb to Clare House, a home for battered and abused women in Lancaster. The lamb was purchased by Dorothy Heistand in memory of her late husband Walter. The Heistands were long-time, well-known 4-H leaders in the community. Mrs. Heistand paid $9 per pound for a total of $846. She then donated the lamb to be resold, again for Clare House. And Lancaster Ford bid $2.75 per pound and added $258,50 to the gift. The net proceeds to Clare House was $1,1045. Needless to say, things got a little emotional in the middle of the lamb sale. (See editoral page A10.)

Other sales for charity, Casey High, owner of the grand champion steer, bought Jill Hoffines lamb for $1.85 and donated it back to be resold with proceeds going to the Lancaster 4-H judging team travel fund. The lamb then sold to Manheim Auto Auction for $2 or a total of $178.

The Seibert family, Manheim, bought Jamie Sellard's lamb for $2.85 per pound and donated it back to be resold for the FFA Greenhouse construction fund. The 87-pound lamb then sold to Larry and Carol Huber, Manheim, for $2.75 and resold again for $2.75 to Ken Witmer, Manheim. Total to the Greenhouse fund was $478.50.

The annual auction went according to schedule. For example, the 102 hogs were sold in about one hour. An evening meal was available free to all registered buyers.

'Some Countries Don't Have A Word For Volunteerism'

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

GRANVILLE (Mifflin Co.)—"Some countries don't even have a word for volunteerism in their language," said Dr. Harold Ott at a banquet to honor 4-H volunteers.

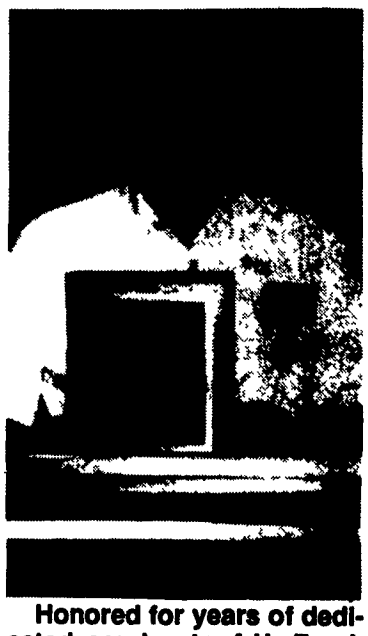
Regional 4-H director from Penn State, Ott spoke briefly to more than 75 volunteers, 4-H'ers, parents, and guests at the 4-H leaders banquet at the Granville United Methodist Church on Oct. 10.

He complimented Mifflin County for seeing the need for an additional youth development agent and hiring Lori Lauver to fill that position.

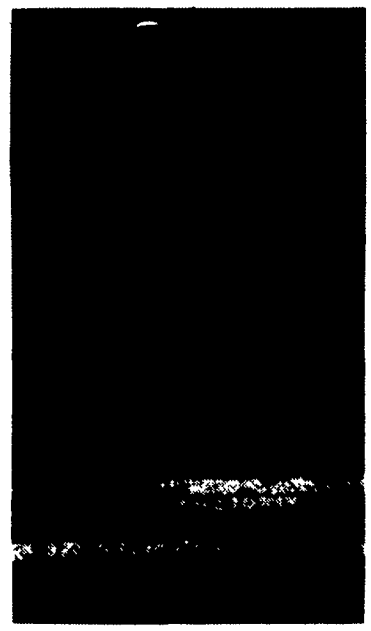
The 4-H junior leaders, who planned the banquet, surprised Frank Bonson with the Friends of 4-H Award. The award goes to a non-4-H leader who contributes notably to the prorgram. Bonson spends countless hours in pre-fair preparations and helps in the show ring.

Suzanne Fisher received a plaque for her 20 years as an adviser to the junior leaders. Fisher is stepping down temporarily as a leader to obtain her master's degree. Adam Wert received a first-year leader pin. Dixie Goss and Christine Orwig accepted 5-year pins. Ten-year pins went to Dale Gro, Alan Laughlin, Ronald Soccio, and Darv Yoder. Honored for 15 years of service were Deb Filson, Howard Lindsey, and Barry Wilcher. Jacqueline Lindsey received a 20-year pin along with Suzanne Fisher. Helen Kirk and Helen Krick were honored for 25 years as 4-H leaders.

Several junior leaders commented on their 4-H experience over the years. Beth Ann Shade, Karin Fisher, Charlotte Shehan, Shauna Henry, Tiffany Goss, Chris Uhland, and Jessica Filson told of the county exchange with Michigan, experiences as camp counselors, taking the Dale Carnegie course, Farm/City week preparations to visit elementary-aged children in school, and their experiences with fair projects.



Honored for years of dedicated service to 4-H, Frank Bonson accepted a plaque from the Mifflin County junior leaders.



After 20 years as a leader of the 4-H junior leaders, Suzanne Fisher is pursuing her master's degree.

Hiller Set To Open 123rd Pa. State Grange Convention

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The president of the Pennsylvania State Grange is to open the 123rd edition of the Pennsylvania State Grange convention by reviewing the past year's accomplishments while offering a vision of the future to an expected audience of more than 1,000 Grangers, during the first full day of the State Session, Oct. 23.

The Pennsylvania State Grange convention runs Oct. 22-26 in West Middlesex, Mercer County.

Hiller said one of the strengths of the Pennsylvania State Grange, with more than 33,000 members, is its legislative branch and grassroots policies that govern the Grange and influence decisions on Capitol Hill.

"It is in Grange meetings where good legislation has had its beginnings," Hiller said, "and where it will continue to influence our legislators as we protect Grange interests while serving the agricultural and rural communities."

Grange-influenced legislative accomplishments in 1995 include passage of the Ag Education bill and underground storage tank legislation, dismantling of the Department of Environmental Resources (DER), and lowering the over-order premium with the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board.

"There are many areas where Grange policy must be inserted and sustained," Hiller said. "Grange influence and integrity remain high, and we must continue to expand our list of legislative accomplishments while maintaining our vigilance in Harrisburg and Washington."

. Hiller said the accomplishments of the past with a vision toward the future will guide the organization as the Grange continues to tackle issues facing communities and the agricultural industry.

"The Grange must continue to be a leading force, in partnership with organizations of similar views, and recognize that agriculture is now, more than ever before, a business - big business - and more than a way of life, for that way of life means simply to exist. We must do more than that."

As a grass-roots organization, policies are formulated at the local and county level and then passed to the state Grange in the form of a resolution.

Once passed, the resolution becomes Grange policy and those policies, which have federal implications, are submitted for consideration at the National Grange convention in November.

There are about 75 resolutions that will be discussed at the State Grange convention this year. Some issues facing this year's delegate body are the 1995 Farm Bill, strengthening the Agricultural Security Act, water use regulation, passage of the Delaney Clause, building code regulations and rural education reform (School Choice).

This year's session is being hosted by Beaver, Lawrence and Mercer counties.

"The Grange is a grass-roots organization which gets its policies from the local granges in the form of resolutions," said Hiller. "Over the years, the Grange has successfully lobbied for such issues as rural mail delivery, establishment of rural electric cooperatives and fairer prices for farmers. All these policies started at a local grange and were then passed to the state level."

A highlight of the five-day convention will be the State of Agriculture Address from Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius on Tuesday afternoon, and the presentation of the various departmental awards on Tuesday evening.

Awards to be presented Tuesday evening at the All-Granger banquet include the State Master's Award for Excellence in Community Service and Membership Growth, community service awards to the outstanding subordinate (local) and Pomona (county) Granges, past officer awards and the Granger of the Year award, the highest honor bestowed upon an individual for service to the organization.

Youth members, ages 15-35, will take center stage Sunday as they compete in the Public Speaking, Sing-A-Song and Knowledge Bowl competitions beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the West Middlesex High School auditorium.

"The competition in these events is tough and the talent is outstanding as youth members battle for statewide honors and the right to perform against their peers from around the country at the National Grange convention," Hiller said. "These youths demonstrate skills and abilities that they have learned as Grange members. Many are leaders within their own granges and will one day be the leaders of our nation."

The Pennsylvania State Grange is a 123-year-old family fraternity that offers its members benefits such as insurance, a credit union, lobbying efforts, community service, and social activities.

Patz
15 YEAR WARRANTY
Manufactured in Pound, Wisconsin

Here is something often overlooked...

Only Patz gives you 47 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain, resulting in a chain so good that others are attempting to copy it.

Many Patz Gutter Cleaner chains still working well after more than 30 years of use.

After the Patz patent on hook-and-eye chain expired, some other companies have attempted to copy the Patz chain. Some promote 10- and 12-year warranties on chain—but they have not yet had 10 or 12 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain.

Patz has continued to improve its chain for 47 years with special-formula steel, special forging techniques and special steel hardening processes.

Rely on the proven, long-life chain. Patz provides a written 15-year chain warranty because so many chains are working well long after 15 years of use.

Better yet, your chain warranty is backed up by a solid, reliable company that has been serving farmers for 47 years with the same family ownership.

Insist on Patz chain!

Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association
DHIA Service Center, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802

JAMES BOYER
DRPC Manager

Pennsylvania DHIA's DRPC has become the first dairy records processing center in the nation to provide reports for Milk Urea Nitrogen (MUN) testing.

"While other DHIA labs have offered MUN testing for several months, none of them are providing MUN testing as an integral part of their DHIA program," said Joe Hayes, the project leader responsible for the implementation of MUN in Pennsylvania's DRPC.

Hayes, a former Clinton County dairy farmer who has worked for Pennsylvania DHIA for the last quarter century, is no stranger to innovations in the computer industry.

He was involved in the conversion that brought the first computerized laboratory in the nation to Pennsylvania during the 1970's.

Hayes was the project manager for the program which made Pennsylvania DHIA the first and only processing center in the country to provide both protein and non-fat milk solids analysis throught its DPRC.

And Hayes was an important contributor to the project that gave Pennsylvania the first lab in the country that replaced large, expensive computers in its DHIA lab with networked PC's.

"An important part of MUN testing is the analysis done by a vet practitioner or feed dealer in consultation with the herd owner," Hayes said. "Our MUN report is an effort to support that process.

"The other DHIA's that are testing for MUN right now don't really offer any analysis, because they're basically just lists that are printed off the lab machines that don't go through the Processing Center," he said. "As a result they simply don't have access to the kind of data we do to cross tabulate MUN results against lactation number, days in milk, herd grouping, and so on.

"We offer a MUN report that looks, acts and feels like the Herd Summary that our farmers are already comfortable with. A stand-alone DHIA lab can't produce that kind of information.

"For individual animals, we also show the MUN results right on the monthly report along with all of the cow's other vital stats. Again, if you're just printing components off a printer in the lab you can't offer that kind of complete, convenient service," Hayes said.

MUN analysis is also available in electronic form through Pa. DHIA's ARIS program, and on Pennsylvania DHIA's electronic lab bulletin board. For LER herds, or herds using a DII compliant program (such as Westfalia's Dairyplan, or de Leval's Herd-Master Galaxy) the DRPC also offers an option to make lab results, including MUN, available on diskette in a form that can be brought directly into a herd owner's on-farm computer.

"Unlike most other DHIA labs, we aren't just a front end that feeds numbers into a processing center hundreds or thousands of miles away," said Dixie Burris, Pa. DHIA's lab manager.

"Because Pa. DHIA controls and owns its own processing center, we've historically had a much tighter integration between our lab and DRPC," Burris said. "And if you look at our track record of innovations, that close working relationship has always paid big dividends to our farmers, who get the benefits of new laboratory technology first."

Pennsylvania DHIA introduced MUN testing the first of October. The service, including the new report, is available on a first come, first served basis to DHIA members for an additional charge of 15 cents per cow.

Nonmembers can also make use of the new service.

Interested dairymen should ask their Pa. DHIA technicians for more information, or call the DHIA service center at 1-800-DHI-TEST.

Moldy Feeds Can Be Very Costly

GLENN A. SHIRK
Lancaster County
Extension Agent

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Moldy feeds could be a problem for many farmers this year, primarily because of situations that occurred around the time of harvest.

Corn dried down very rapidly in the field and some of it was too dry when harvested to pack well in the silo.

When corn has over 15 percent moisture and is piled or stored for more than about six hours without being aerated, dried, acid-treated or ensiled, heating, mold development and mycotoxin formation occurs.

This process speeds up under warm conditions such as occurred this fall.

Some ear corn was put on piles this fall, waiting to be chopped and ensiled at a later date. Some of this corn was already moldy by the time it was chopped and bagged.

Ensiling and heating moldy corn, or adding preservatives to moldy corn will not destroy molds or mycotoxins that are already present.

Ammoniation might help reduce aflatoxins in some situations, but it is not practical for most farm situations.

About all that can be done is prevent the problem from becoming worse.

One way is to feed ensiled feeds fast enough and frequently enough to stay ahead of spoilage — while also limiting intake of moldy feeds.

Another way is to dry and aerate grains, remove fines to improve air circulation, or acid-treat grains to retard further spoilage.

Feeding moldy feeds can be very costly! It affects animals in various ways, depending upon the kinds and amounts of molds and mycotoxins consumed.

Young, unhealthy and stressed animals are more susceptible. Pigs, horses and poultry are more sensitive than ruminants.

Symptoms of mold and mycotoxin-related problems are similar to those of many other problems. This makes accurate diagnosis more difficult.

Symptoms in dairy cattle include: reduced dry matter intakes, lower milk production, poorer conception, enlarged vulvas, irregular heats, diarrhea, more ketosis and displaced abomasums (DA), and in severe cases, death.

The affect of mycotoxins can be cumulative.

As mycotoxins inflict continued injury to the kidneys, animals display less and less resistance to diseases and infections.

Symptoms for other animals can be similar.

If you have moldy feeds and are experiencing some of the problems mentioned above, and you have ruled out other causes of these problems, be suspicious of moldy feeds. These feeds could include silages, high moisture grains and hay, plus purchased grains, concentrates and byproduct feeds.

Consult your veterinarian and nutritionist for advice.

Consider analyzing suspect feeds for mycotoxins, preferably before you start feeding them. Use good sampling techniques for the reasons mentioned below.

When attempting to predict mold toxicity of feeds, appearances can be deceptive. Feeds that do not appear to be moldy might be toxic. Other feeds that are moldy might be safe to feed.

Moldy clumps of feed might not contain any mycotoxins. Non-moldy feed, a foot or two away from moldy clumps, could be loaded with toxins.

Mycotoxins can also exist in pockets of concentration scattered throughout the feed supply. Thus it is very important to obtain representative samples for analysis.

Sample three to five different loads or feedings, and obtain eight to 12 samples from each.

Mix all of these subsamples together and submit about 2 pounds for analysis. Also hold another 2 pounds in reserve for confirmatory analyses, should it become necessary at a later date.

Sample bagged silage by boring through the plastic in several locations, and patching the holes securely when done.

Handle samples according to laboratory recommendations.

One of the main toxins of concern for dairy is a fusarium toxin known as DON or vomitoxin. Zearalenone and aflatoxin may be a problem too.

If you have horses or mules check for fumonisin or B1 toxin; they are very sensitive to it. Pigs are sensitive to all of these.

If you have moldy feeds there are several things that can be done.

First of all, consult with your veterinarian and nutritionist. Analyze suspect feeds. Reduce feeding rates.

Remove ensiled feeds at a rate rapid enough to keep ahead of spoilage, even if it means feeding two or three herds from one silo. Keep ensiled feeds fresh by feeding it more often, by frequently removing old feed from bunks and mangers, and by maintaining a well-sheared face on horizontal silos.

Do not give moldy feeds to young animals, pregnant animals, and cows in early lactation. Also remember that horses, pigs and chickens are more sensitive to molds than ruminant animals.

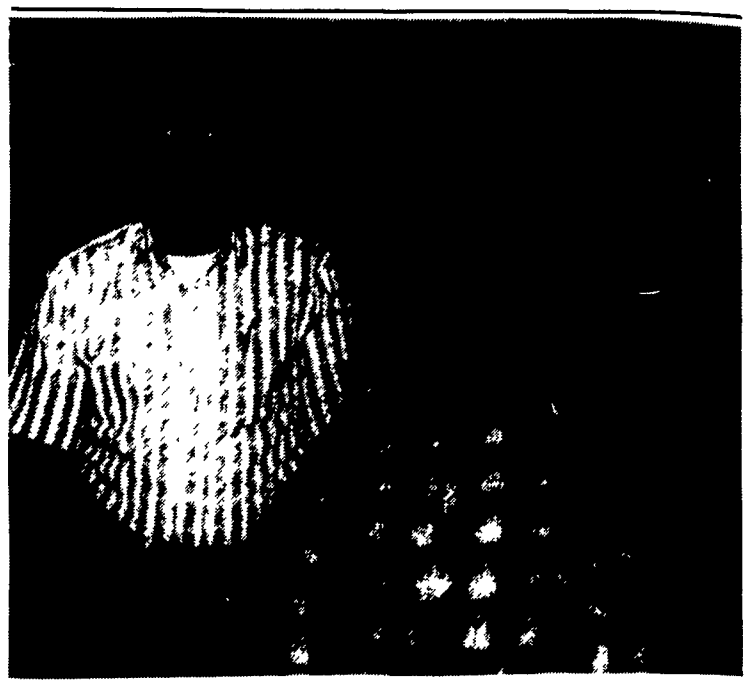
Moldy feeds have less energy than indicated on forage test reports. Digestibility and intakes also are reduced.

To compensate for this, discount the energy values on forage test reports by 5 percent to 8 percent and increase the energy density of the ration.

Include bentonite or aluminosilicate in the ration to help reduce the effects of mycotoxins.

Where practical, ammoniation can be used in an attempt to destroy some of the aflatoxins.

In severe cases, discard moldy feeds, because good herd performance is worth much more than the value of moldy feeds.



Mifflin County's new Farm Bureau president Mark Ellinger of Lewistown, left, stands with treasurer and membership processor Pauline Glick of Belleville and secretary Janice White. Both were re-elected.

Farm Bureau Field Services Director Emphasizes Education

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.)—"You don't have to grow up on a farm to understand and appreciate agriculture," said Alison Cowen, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's director of field services.

Cowen spoke at the Mifflin County Farm Bureau annual meeting the end of September.

Raised in Queens, New York City, Cowen told her city-to-country story and finished by emphasizing education.

"Give people the opportunity to learn about your occupation," she said, giving timely advice just before Farm/City Week.

Cowen spoke to the group as part of their annual business meeting. In the election of directors, Glen Martin of Bratton Township, Mike Goss of Oliver Township, and Dave Stuck of Union Township directors were re-elected to serve three-year terms.

State Director Wayne Freeman honored Membership Chairman Ken Loht of McClure with a certificate for signing 26 new members in 1995. Elrose Glick of Belleville received recognition for obtaining 11 new members. Recognition was given to Gloria Goss of McVeytown for serving as ag in the classroom coordinator, Gail Strock for serving as county information director, and Ken Loht for obtaining goal as membership chairman. Elrose Glick, Ken Loht, Mark Ellinger, and Gail Strock also received star awards from the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) office in Camp Hill.

Governmental Relations Director Mark Ellinger reported on national and state legislative activity. Dave Stuck conducted the policy development session.

At the board of director's reorganizational meeting, Mark Ellinger of Lewistown was elected president, replacing Stan Dunk of Vira who had served as president for three years. Dave Stuck of Belleville was re-elected as vice president while Janice White of Reedsville will continue as secretary for the organization. Pauline Glick of Belleville will continue as treasurer and membership processor.

Board members Elrose and Pauline Glick and Mark Ellinger will serve as voting delegates to the PFB convention in Hershey on Nov. 13-15.

Richard Plotts, county agent in Clinton County, said some corn yields are better than farmers thought they would be. Beans seem to be totally damaged because pods were developing at the hottest, driest part of the summer.

Mark Madden, agronomy agent, Susquehanna/Bradford, said yields are "not too shabby." He said isolated farms and communities are not as good. But crops seem to be resilient. "We are not into picking corn with field checks at 140 bu.," Madden said. "That is good for our area. The cribs and barns seem to be full around here."

One problem that has become apparent on many farms involves moldy feeds. Corn dried down very rapidly in the field, and some farmers found the corn was already too dry when they harvested it, and the silage did not pack well in the silo. You will want to read the column "Moldy Feeds Can Be Very Costly" by Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy agent, in this issue.

Forage Quality Highlight Of Conference

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — On Tuesday morning, Nov. 14, the '95 Quality Forages Conference will get under way at the Shadowbrook Inn and Convention Center.

Livestock farmers will not want to miss this event. The conference will bring together speakers, specialists, and producers from around the northeast United States.

The conference is being organized by a committee involving regional Penn State Cooperation Extension offices and the Endless Mountains and Pocono Resource Development and Conservation Services. The Pennsylvania Forage and Grasslands Council together with Northeast Farm Credit, ACA are sponsoring the meeting and providing refreshment breaks. Ag business and service providers will be on hand to exhibit their trades.

Forage quality is, and will continue to be, of utmost importance in an area like northeastern Pennsylvania where the primary market for our forages is through a livestock enterprise.

At this time, over one-half million forage producing acres exist in northeast Pennsylvania. Since the late 1980s, that acreage has decreased approximately 10 percent while livestock numbers have remained comparitively constant. The ability of farmers in this region to market quality forages through livestock products will have a very large and direct influence on the economic well-being of their farms, agribusinesses, and the greater economic community at large.

Forage producers attending the meeting, whether they graze animals or rely on machine-harvested crops, will better understand how management affects forage quality. The conference aims to cover all aspects of forage management from production to harvesting to storing and to feeding quality forages.

Preregistration is required. The $12 registration fee will provide refreshments, lunch, and the conference proceedings to each individual. Registrations must be mailed or delivered to the Susquehanna County Cooperative Extension office, 31 Public Avenue, Montrose, PA 18801, by Monday, Nov. 6.

Following the keynote address by Dr. Sid Bosworth, professor of agronomy from the University of Vermont and formerly associated with the Penn State Agronomy Department, participants can choose among breakout sessions in one of two conference tracks. One track will follow a program more suited to producers who pasture their livestock while another track will focus on the mechanically-harvested issues of managing quality forages.

Penn State Advisory Council Hears Good News, Takes Legislators On College Tour

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The Penn State Agricultural Council heard college and university officials report some good news at their semi-annual meeting Wednesday afternoon. Two items were especially gratifying. Enrollment is up, and Graham Spanier, Penn State University's new president, has become an outspoken advocate of the College of Agricultural Sciences, especially in relation to funding from the state legislature.

Associate Dean James Mortensen said overall enrollment is up, as is almost every major in the ag sciences programs. The total number of students is now over 3,300, and this makes Penn State the largest ag sciences college in the Big Ten. Enrollment is up more on the 17 outer campuses than it is at the main campus in State College.

Mortensen announced the agribusiness day to be held Nov. 2 on the main campus and said the College of Ag Sciences has the largest scholarship program of all the colleges at Penn State University.

Rich DiEugenio, from the office of government affairs at Penn State, praised President Spanier for his attention to the budget needs for ag research and extension. The budget squeeze has caused layoffs in ag extension because the legislature has not increased funding for a number of years. But he said we now have Spanier's leadership as an advocate who calls attention to the plight of the line items in the budget that are needed to increase funds to the college.

While President Spanier has asked for a reasonable 4.9 percent increase for the total University program, he has singled out ag research and extension line items to receive 11.4 percent increase. He is making the case about what has happened because of this lack of funding as he travels across the state and as he meets with legislators in Harrisburg.

Dean Lamartine Hood agreed, saying we are blessed with a leader in President Spanier who understands the unique needs of your college. He said he believes Spanier is committed to change what Hood called the longstanding downward spiral. "Spanier is persistent, repetitious, clear, and committed to what the college is all about," Hood said.

Other discussion included a report on the process of selecting a new dean for the College of Ag Sciences. Council president Jay Rush announced a meeting set for Nov. 16 from 10 a.m. to noon for the council's board of directors to hear from the ag community what considerations should be made in selecting the new dean. More information about this meeting can be found by calling Pat Heuser, director of industry relations at Penn State. Phone: (814) 863-9646.

Following the council meeting, members boarded a bus to the state Capitol to pick up legislators for the ride to Reading in Berks County and a reception and banquet. The overnight event was planned to acquaint state and local government officials with the college. President Spanier was the keynote speaker.

After lodging overnight at the Sheraton Berkshire, the legislators were given a tour of the Penn State Berks campus and later made a stop at Way-Har Farms for a tour of the dairy operation and retail store with Bill and Lolly Lesher on the trip back to Harrisburg.

Almost from the beginning of his involvement with the Young Farmers, Hoppes became involved with the dissemination of information through the chapter newsletter — a job he continues to this day, along with his wife, Grace, with the state newsletter.

Through the newsletter and other methods, Hoppes said he will act to serve as contact liaison with the state and national associations in developing educational programs and ensuring instructors are hired at the high school level.

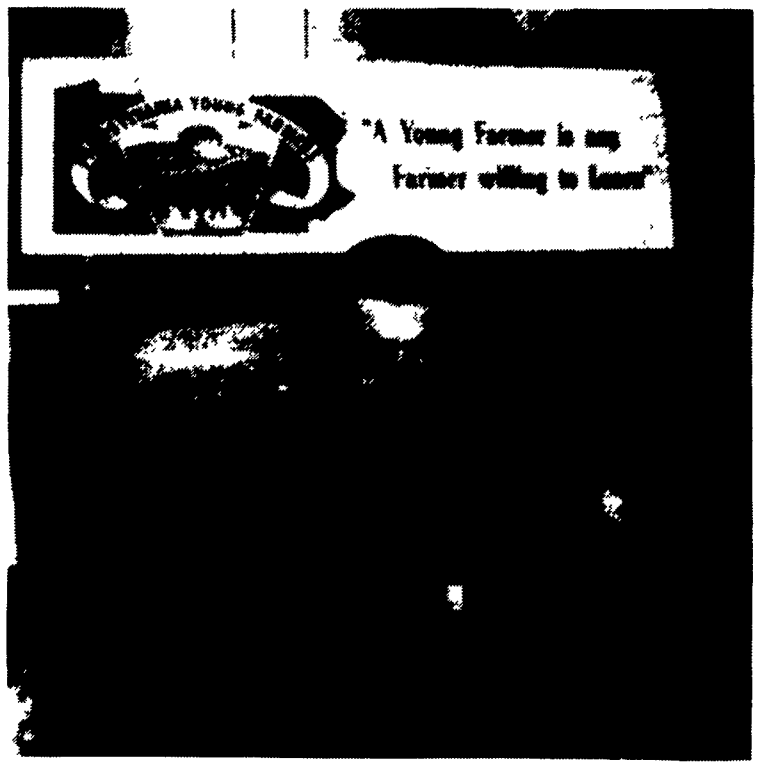
The state organization plans to meet for their winter convention on Feb. 6-8, 1996, at the Somerset Ramada Inn. At the February convention, Hoppes said the delegates will vote to host the 1999 National Young Farmers Education Institute.

Hoppes has contributed his time, with his wife, toward the production of the state association's newsletter, published about five times a year. He served as co-editor the past three years — the state association paid for the materials and production.

But in his new role, effective Oct. 1, Hoppes hopes to use the newsletter as a way to disseminate information about leadership training and educational programs available from the association.

A big part of Hoppes's responsibilities will be to work with the 34 affiliated county organizations to ensure that industry and education work together to provide part-time instruction to local farmers and farm-related organizations.

In the meantime, Hoppes hopes to work in getting the FFA and other organizations more involved in the Young Farmer program.



"We as farmers keep to ourselves too much," said Richard Hoppes, newly appointed agricultural education coordinator for the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association.

Dairy Software Available

VERONA, Wis.—AgSource, Software Sales and Service Division of Wisconsin DHI Cooperative, recently announced the availability of a new dairy herd improvement software program—DairySTOR 1.0.

DairySTOR is a computer program for dairy management in a Windows environment.

Animal event data is input from one screen and can be completed individually or by groups. Producers can review all the individual cow events with one simple keystroke.

The program allows producers to define additional diagnosis and treatments within the vet check entry screen. A permanent condition on a single animal can be added to the ID record.

To assist in scheduling events, DairySTOR permits producers to predefine action intervals, such as pregnancy checks and next heat due, which will then inform the producer when an individual cow has met the criteria and action should occur.

DairySTOR quickly and easily turns individual cow production data into lactation curves. Producers can take other event information such as reproduction status, medical treatments or BST usage and overlay on top of the lactation curve for better management decisions. Historical graphs can also be created.

Reports are created from the DairySTOR database. Producers can use the pre-designed reports or create their own report by selecting the information to meet their needs.

DairySTOR is a software program designed to assist dairy producers for better management decisions.

Flying Farmer Heads Lebanon County Farm Women

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Almost 70 years old, married 50 years, the mother of 8, grandmother of 10, and a great grandmother should give Eileen Keller the license to slow down.

Instead, this Flying Farmer heads both the Pennsylvania Flying Farmers with its 102 members and the Lebanon County Farm Women Society with its 337 membership.

Since that doesn't keep her busy every minute, she volunteers at Hershey Medical Center, serves meals at the fairgrounds, cooks and waitresses for the Schaefferstown Fire Company, and oversees sewing duties for the Midway Church of the Brethren.

That, of course, doesn't cover everything Eileen does, but it does show that she puts her grandparents' advice to practice.

She said, "My grandparents always said, 'Don't be afraid to work.'"

Born in Maryland, Eileen was only 16 months old when her mother died. She was raised by her grandparents who moved to Lancaster County, and, when Eileen was 16 years old, to a farm in Lebanon County.

The farm was next door to the family who owned Keller Bros. Motor Co., which was the family of Eileen's husband-to-be Mark.

The couple married in 1945, and shortly thereafter, moved into a converted school house on Prescott Road where they continue to live.

World War II had just ended, and the adventure of flying captured Mark's attention. The GI program made it easy for him to take a flying and written test for a pilot's license. When Mark heard about the Flying Farmers' Chapter that was being organized at State College, he flew to the meeting. The chapter met monthly and it wasn't long before the wives of the pilots decided to accompany their husbands to the meetings. Right from the beginning, family involvement became synonymous with Flying Farmers.

"Every month we'd gather on some farmer's airstrip on a Saturday. Sometimes, we'd (members) stay overnight. Local farmers would open up their homes and pack us in spare bedrooms, pull out cots or pile blankets on the floor," Eileen said.

The Kellers remember flying with as many as five of their children to these monthly events.

"I'd always keep my eyes open for a field in case we needed to make an emergency landing," Eileen said. Weather conditions did require them to make a landing in someone's backyard, but, Eileen said, "We never had any really close calls."

Although, Eileen never found time to pursue training for a pilot's license, she became a full-fledged member of the Flying Farmers and worked hard to promote the organization. She served as a past queen, which required her to serve as hostess and attend many of the conventions in other states. She has also held offices as secretary, vice president and two terms as president.

Back home, Mark worked for a Reading aviation company for 10 years and then for a Harrisburg aviation company for nine years.

"I was co-pilot for twin engine airplanes and logged more than 5,000 hours of flying time," he said.

In 1975, Mark returned to the

Eileen's garden includes several stalks of sunflowers that she uses to feed the birds and squirrels on their farm.

At the International Flying Farmers' Convention held this summer, Eileen won this tractor.

Lebanon County Farm Women Hold Convention

SCHAEFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — "You're an exceptional group of ladies who do many things quietly," Lois Bohn told the hundreds of women who attended the annual convention of the Society of Farm Women in Lebanon County.

In a recap of the many service projects completed by the 337 county members, Bohn said that the society's strength lies in the members who quietly go about helping others.

During the all-day convention held at the Schaefferstown Fire Hall, members elected new officers, honored 80- and 90-year-old members, and reviewed the society's accomplishments and treasury. Doug Allen, Channel 8 weather man, and Banjo Bob entertained the group.

In a humorous talk, Allen explained how weather patterns are determined and why weather reports sometimes go awry.

Presidents from other county groups also attended the convention. Naomi Bupp of York County reported that 20,000 Pennsylvania Farm Women Cookbooks have been sold. This year, profits from cookbook sales provided six $1,000 and six $250 scholarships for children and grandchildren of Farm Women members.

Lebanon County has 337 members who are affiliated with the October is the month with warm sunny days and cool nights for sleeping. There are bright colored leaves on the trees. But, this year when we traveled to the Bloomsburg Fair in Columbia County we saw only a few orange and red maple trees. Summer's dry weather may have affected the coloration of the foliage.

However, when we drove to the camper in Snyder County, we saw a lot more color than here in Lancaster County. When our grandson stayed there overnight, he came back and told me that it was too noisy to sleep. This I could not understand until I spent a night there. Exactly what insect lives in the woods in Jack's Mountain I don't know but it is very noisy.

As soon as the job of preserving fruit and vegetables is finished, other jobs appear like magic. The houseplants in the garden must be potted and some flower beds weeded. The windows need to be washed and some trees transplanted.

The silos are filled and the Ag Bag is filled. Now my husband has turned his attention to the black walnuts laying in the fields and on the road. He has filled his pickup truck bed with nuts to be hulled. Not only the kernels are used but also the hard shells are used as an abrasive to clean masonry.

Tomorrow I'm to teach the lesson to our Bible Study group. We were told that this year's study book was easier to understand than last year's. But, I find it rather difficult and so will have to rely on the members helping to discuss the subject we've been assigned.

Flying Farmer Heads Lebanon

family business, where he stayed until he retired. But flying remained a big part of the family's life. In fact, an airstrip on their farm continues to be used by the business, for private transit, and as a practicing grounds for student pilots.

About the same time that Eileen joined Flying Farmers in 1947, she also joined Farm Women Group 8 of Lebanon. She was active in the organization for 30 years. By this time the youngest of eight children was in high school. Eileen took a job as an operating room aide at Hershey Medical Center. Her working schedule conflicted with Farm Women meetings and her attendance became sporadic until 18 years ago, when she again became an active member.

It wasn't long before Eileen was president of her society and held offices on the county level. Last week, she was installed as the president of the Lebanon County Society, which has 21 societies in it.

"I think its important that we treat our elders — the charter members of Farm Women — with respect," Eileen said.

She enjoys the friendships she developed over the years with many of the members.

"As a board member, I get to the other societies in the county. It's a good way to really learn to know others," Eileen said.

Eileen and her husband Mark raised eight children whose lives were centered around friendships with families associated with both organizations.

Four of the Kellers children own an airplane. Although Mark is no longer allowed to fly because of a heart problem, the couple remain faithful members of the Flying Farmers and of the Short Wing Pipers.

"But now we drive to the meetings instead of flying," Eileen said. Conventions sometimes take them as far as the West Coast. They are planning to attend the next convention to be held in South Dakota.

Of both the Flying Farmers and the Farm Women Society of Lebanon Farm, Eileen said, "We'd like to see younger members get involved."

As for herself, Eileen has no intentions of slowing down.

A quilt depicts each of the Keller's eight children by this whimsical applique. A name and a attached pin such as an apple for a teacher or an airplane for a pilot accompanies each child represented.

Lebanon County Farm Women Hold Convention

Pennsylvania Society that has 3,072 members.

Many of these members began attending meetings with their mothers and grandmothers. The tradition continues to be passed on. Karen Gulatta, Myerstown, attended the convention with her 6-month-old daughter. Karen said, "I wasn't much older than this when I started attending Farm Women meetings with my mother. Karen's mother is Joan Dunmore of Myerstown, who also attended the convention.

Officers selected for two-year terms are Eileen Keller, president; Nancy Bennet, vice president; Susan Hawley, second vice president; Eunice Reist, secretary, and Ferne Hitz, treasurer.

Members who are 80 years old received Farm Women pins. Honored were Peg Nolt, Mary Blouch, Lillian Hauck, and Mary Brajkovich.

Two 90-year-old members, Ellen Brandt and Agnes Moot, were unable to attend the convention but will be given Farm Women pins later.

A special offering was taken to help with medical expenses of farm family Bob and Lori Shuey who had a 3-month premature baby born weighing 1½ pounds.

Honored with a Farm Women pin for being 80-year-old members are Peg Nolt of Society 8, Mary Blouch of Society 10, Lillian Hauck of Society 16, and Mary Brajkovich of Society 18.

Becoming a Farm Women member passes from one generation to another. When Joan Dunmore, right, first became a member, she took her daughter Karen with her to meetings. Now married, Karen continues the tradition by bringing her 6-month-old daughter Katelyn Gulatta to the convention.

'Pastabilities' Galore

Go to a large supermarket and look over the array of pasta. The unique shapes and possibilities for cooking them is mind boggling.

One of the most up and coming foods in this country is couscous (pronouced koqse-koose). Couscous is tiny granules of pasta, made from 100 percent semolina wheat. Because it has already been cooked with steam and then dried, it is ready to eat in less than 10 minutes. Similar in texture and appearance to rice, it is ideal as a side dish or as an ingredient in main dish recipes. When prepared couscous remains fluffy and separate, and readily takes on the flavors of the other foods cooked or served with it.

Couscous has been around for nearly 1,000 years, originating in Morocco, Tunisia and Algeria. It is widely consumed throughout the world and is especially popular in France, but until recently most Americans had never heard of it. Once limited to specialty and health food stores, couscous can be found in most supermarkets. Couscous can be purchased plain or in flavors such as parmesan, herbed chicken, or roasted garlic and olive oil.

Couscous is naturally low in fat and high in carbohydrates. Because it is so easy to prepare and so versatile, couscous is an ideal part of any meal. It can be substituted in many of your favorite recipes that require rice or pasta.

Try some of these old favorite pasta dishes, but don't be afraid to experiment with couscous.

October
28- Pumpkins Galore

November
4- Biscuits and Mix
11- Favorite Breads
18- Thanksgiving Dinner

Featured Recipe

It's the time of year when the air is brisk and leaves are changing color. Everywhere you look, something is being harvested. Pumpkins and cheese may sound like a strange combination, but are the perfect blend in this recipe. Cheese is packed with calcium and lots of other important minerals you need each day. This four-cheese blend provides a fun, yet nutritious variety that is perfect for fall socials or an after school snack.

Four Cheese Pumpkin

2 cup (8 oz.) shredded Colby cheese, at room temperature
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Provolone cheese, at room temperature
1 cup cottage cheese
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Paprika
Green bell pepper
Assorted crackers

Combine Colby cheese, Provolone cheese, cottage cheese, cream cheese, and Worcestershire sauce in work bowl of food processor. Process until smooth. Wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate several hours for ease in shaping and to blend flavors. Shape into a pumpkin and sprinkle with paprika. Use a piece of green bell pepper for the stem. Allow to stand at room temperature about 20 minutes before serving with assorted crackers.

Building Peace

"A week without violence"—that's the challenge for many communities for October 15 to 21. Violence increasingly threatens the physical, emotional, and educational well-being of children, adolescents, and adults. Sadly, most acts of violence are not committed by strangers but by family members, friends, and acquaintances. This problem is not exclusively an urban one. Rural areas and the suburbs also show their scars from violence.

According to a National Crime Survey, one in seven students is affected by bullying, and one in five high school students carries a weapon. In 1993, 41 percent of high school students reported being the target of a racial, religious, or gender-related incident in a study done by the Department of Justice.

This coming week, many families, schools and community organizations will actively oppose the violence around them. Some places are asking families to turn off the violence (on TV, movies, computer games); others are showing people how to build peace through seminars and work projects.

You can be a part of this important effort. Researchers document that violence is learned which means that it can also be unlearned. In 1950, our children reportedly were influenced by the home, school, church, peers, and media in that order. In 1990, the media was the primary influencer followed by peers, home, school, and church. The amount of time parents spend with their children has dropped 40 percent during the last 25 years.

If you're wondering if what a person sees in the media really matters, consider this fact: Forty years of research confirm that higher levels of viewing violence on TV increases acceptance and use of aggressive behavior, increases fear of becoming a victim of violence, increases desensitization to violence, and decreases the likelihood of taking action on behalf of a victim of violence.

Each of us can make a difference and take a stand against the violence around us. Here are some ideas. Try one each day this week.

•Turn off the TV, movies, music, video or computer games that make violence look exciting, humorous or a means for gaining power and respect. Also turn off media that mock or stereotype a race, gender, or culture. Instead turn on entertainment that encourages people to be better family members, friends, students, workers, citizens.

•Go one day without saying angry words to the people in your life. Count to 20 silently before speaking at all. Attack a problem, not a person. Try to settle difficult situations by brainstorming lots of choices and by compromising.

•Write down names of local, national, and international people both present and past who worked for peace. Do you know much about them? If not, check out a book or ask questions to learn more. What trait do you admire about each of them?

•Teach your children the wait strategy against violence: Walk away from fights that aren't yours. (A crowd usually intensifies violence.) Avoid things, places, and people that you know are dangerous. Ignore things that don't really matter. Talk when the problems or the friendship really does matter.

•Make a list of at least twenty games or activities where there are no winners or losers. Biking and putting together a jigsaw puzzle are two ideas. Do one of these.

•Notice and thank each member of your family for something positive that he has done. Too often we focues only on the negative. Better yet, write each thought on a slip of colored paper. Collect them throughout the week and make a chain of good thoughs about your family.

•Do one act of kindness together as a family, like visiting a friend in a nursing home, helping a neighbor with a task, or babysitting for some new parents.

•Introduce yourself to a neighbor you haven't met or visit one you haven't seen recently. Having strong community ties helps prevent violence.

•Write a complaint to a toy company, TV station, magazine or other business that benefits from violent entertainment. Express your support for positive programming, reporting, and entertainment options.

For this week, accept the challenge to make your home and your community a less violent place to live.

Wool Sewing Contest

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.)—The Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Pennsylvania Competition will be held at the Somerset Ramada Inn on December 2. The deadline for entry forms is November 5. There will not be district contests in the state this year.

Persons who enjoy sewing, crocheting, knitting or weaving can show their talent by entering the 1995 Make It Yourself With Wool competition. The age categories are: Pre-teen-12 years and under; Junior-13 to 16 years; Senior-17 to 24 years; Adult-25 years and older.

Valuable prizes will be awarded including gift certificates for fabric; select pieces of name-brand wool and top quality yarn.

The state pre-teen winner will receive a Baby Lock sewing machine and the adult winner will receive a Baby Lock serger machine.

Pennsylvania's top junior and senior winners will be eligible to compete in the national competition next January in Albuquerque, N.M. Availability of funds will determine if one or both state winners will have their way paid to the national contest.

Pennsylvania's adult winners will participate in a national photo contest.

Judges look for current fashion, fabric coordination to pattern, garment suitability to contestant, poise and presentation, and skill in sewing, knitting, crocheting or weaving.

Sponsors of the Make It Yourself With Wool competition are the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association; Pennsylvania Sheep and Lamb Marketing Board; American Sheep Industry Women; American Sheep Industry Association and Baby Lock, U.S.A.

ANSWER — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, wanted to know the secret for making marshmallow cream filling for doughnuts. Thanks to Emma Zimmerman, New Holland, for sending a recipe that she said is not overly sweet and tastes great.

Doughnut Cream

1½ cups shortening
1 cup margarine
Pinch salt
1¼ pounds confectioners' sugar

Combine ingredients and cream well. Add 2 well beaten egg whites. Add enough milk to make a smooth paste. Beat in 1 cup marshmallow cream and whip.

Also, thanks to Joy Reisinger, Landisburg, for sending her favorite recipe.

Marshmallow Filling

½ cup shortening
2 cups confectioners' sugar
1 cup marshmallow creme
3-4 tablespoons cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together ingredients in order given.

ANSWER — Estella Fink, Allentown, wanted a recipe for filled or baked tomatoes. Thanks to A. Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Stuffed Tomatoes

6 large firm tomatoes
½ cup sugar
6 strips bacon, fried and crumbled
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped onion
¼ teaspoon celery seed or ¼ cup chopped celery
1 cup dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup buttered bread crumbs

Scoop out pulp of tomatoes, add remaining ingredients and stuff tomatoes. Put buttered bread crumbs on top. Place in baking dish and bake in 350 degree oven for 30-45 minutes.

I often chop up the tomatoes and mix them with the remaining ingredients, sprinkling bread crumbs on top. More bacon may be used for added flavor but drain off all grease.

ANSWER — Marie Lorah, Tamaqua, wanted a bread recipe that tastes similar to Roman Meal. Thanks to Sarah Clark, Breezewood, for sending a recipe that she said is 30 years old and has excellent taste.

Whole Wheat Bread

2¼ cups instant or regular Ralston cereal
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
⅓ cup vegetable shortening
4 cups milk, scalded
2 packages active, dry yeast
½ cup warm water
7-8 cups all-purpose flour

Grease 3 loaf pans. Combine Ralston, sugar, salt, and shortening in a large bowl. Make a well in the middle. Add hot scalded milk. Stir until thoroughly moistened. Cool to lukewarm, stirring occasionally. Dissolve yeast in water. Stir in cereal mixture. Add 2 cups flour. Mix well. Gradually stir in enough additional flour. Mix well to form a stiff dough. Place on floured surface. Knead until smooth and elastic (8-10 minutes a must). Work in additional flour as needed. Form into ball. Place in greased bowl. Turn to grease all sides of dough. Cover. Let rise in warm place free from drafts until double (about 1 hour). Punch down dough. Place on lightly floured surface. Knead about 2 minutes. Divide dough in thirds. Form loaves. Place in pans. Cover. Let rise in warm place until almost double (about 30 minutes). Bake at 400 degrees in preheated oven, about 30 minutes or until center is browned and bread sounds hollow when lightly tapped.

Remove from pans at once. Cool on wire racks. Makes 3 loaves. Note: for golden brown shiny top, brush tops with beaten egg before leaking.

ANSWER — Nancy Price, Jarrettsville, wanted a recipe for fruit sauce such as they serve with ham at Horn and Horn Restaurant. Thanks to Anne Wiegle, Pottstown, who sent a recipe that she said tastes excellent and is from Georgia.

¼ cup dry mustard
3 tablespoons black pepper
3 tablespoons salt
6 tablespoons sugar
½ cup margarine
¼ cup pepper vinegar (poured off hot peppers)

Mix together ingredients and simmer 30-45 minutes. Makes about 2 quarts.

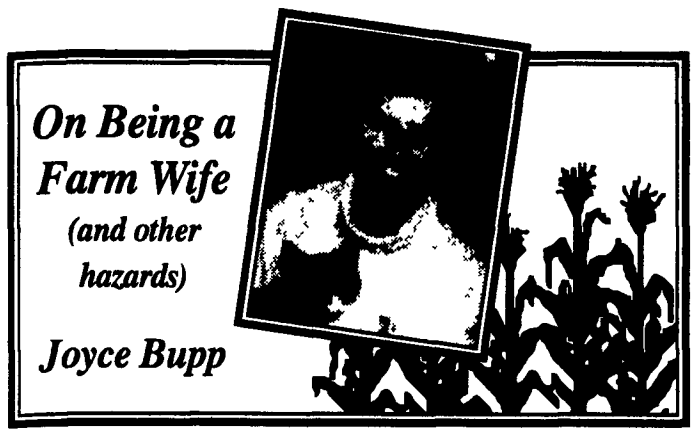
Diane Cruzan
Bridgeton, N.J.



"Do you have a minute?" asks The Farmer, on one of those glorious, warm, sun-splashed mornings we've been so blessed with this October.

("No" is not an acceptable answere to this farmer-posed question unless you really want to mess up his already too-busy schedule.)

"Sure," I reply, peeking out from behind a row of damp blue jeans and summer-scuffed tee-shirts being hung on the washline to dry.

"I need a shuttle," he explains.

Shuttles are always an adventure. And on such a spectacular morning, doing anything outside is preferable to anything inside, especially tackling the stack of mail and paperwork threatening to avalanche off the kitchen table.

Enroute, we assess how harvest is progressing among the fields still scattered around our rapidly-urbanizing and industrializing neighborhood. Most of the corn that wasn't chopped earlier for silage has been combined, while soybeans wait their turn. It's satisfying to note that a neighbor's late-planted beans are ripening to maturity ahead of our first frost. At this stage of October, every unfrosty morning is a bonus.

Trees along the way are beginning to wear a brownish-tint, a hint that they may not color very brilliantly this season. Too dry, some experts have suggested, and our local stands of hardwoods appear to be reinforcing that theory. Though swamp maples are showing some of their lovely Fall reds, even those are softer, more muted.

Our first stop is high on a hill that overlooks The Farmer's boyhood home and haunts. Lovely new homes dot the vista, interspersed with strips of re-greened stands of alfalfa and grass hay and remaining small clusters of woodlots. We drive to the far end of the field, along a fencerow brightened with briar patches sporting maroon-colored leaves and fading stalks of goldenrod. The dead, bare "hawk tree" holds no hungry redtail in its naked upper branches on this stunning morning, luckily for the rabbit that zips out ahead of the combine.

A brief conference between The Farmer and The Farmer I, in the combine's cab, says we have trouble. The pickup, left in the field overnight, refuses to start. Speculating on a battery problem, The Farmer hooks up jumper cables. Nothing.

Fortunately, equipment operator Bobby returns just then with the empty grain truck, after his latest run to the mill. He backs the larger truck toward the pickup and they attach the two with a heavy chain—kept handy for just such expected emergencies.

"Do you think you can pull it with that?" I tease Bob, as he maneuvers the grain truck into towing position. His one gentle tug on the chain stirs the pickup's started into action. One problem temporarily overcome.

With his "wheels" back in operation, The Farmer departs the field—and me in hot pursuit. Where did he say we were going next? I hustle to keep him in sight, and finally catch up as he parks at the next harvest area. Shuttles run more smoothly—trust me—when you both end up at the same destination.

Condensed again into one vehicle, we retrace our route back to another field for a tractor and loaded wagon. He departs in one direction; I take the other. I beat him back to the farm—but not by much. Too much sightseeing.

The sun shines, the maple leaves wave in the breeze. That stack of paperwork beckons, like a whip-wielding overseer. Sigh.

Potato Daze

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambira Co. Correspondent

PORTAGE (Cambria Co.)—In conjunction with farm-city week in Cambria County, the kindergarten classes of Barbara Kent, Martha Krisko, and Neva Shaw at Portage Elementary School, celebrated "Potato Daze." For two days, most of the activities in their classrooms centered around Cambria County's main agricultural commodity—the potato.

The three teachers put forth quite a bit of time and effort planning age-appropriate activities for their students. One purpose was to familiarize the children with the importance of potato farming in this area. The project also gave the students a little bit of the background of this versatile vegetable.

The children learned that the potato is one of the main food crops of the world. The edible part of the plant is called the "tuber," the swollen part of the underground stems. The potato plant is grown from pieces of the tuber. Each piece of the tuber must have one or more little buds, or "eyes" in order for the plant to sprout and develop.

The kindergarten students were able to have a real "hands-on" experience with the potatoes. Buckets of potatoes, still in the ground, were brought in so that the students could see that they actually do grow underground. This came as a surprise to some of the five-year-olds who thought that the vegetable comes from the store, factory, or even trees. The children thoroughly enjoyed digging in the dirt to find the potatoes and didn't seem to mind getting their hands dirty.

The Rick Weakland Farm located in Portage donated the potatoes for the project. This provided the teachers with enough spuds to be able to set up a number of "stations" in their rooms so that the children could participate in a variety of activities. The children were able to count, weigh, estimate, and categorize the potatoes. The skins were especially interesting to the students who investigated them with magnifying glasses.

The potatoes even provided for some "artistic" endeavors. A number of the tubers were cut in half and the teachers carved simple geometric shapes onto these halves. These shapes wre then dipped into paint and used to create shape patterns. Ethan Stoker really enjoyed printing with his potato. He said "it's neat to do, but a messy job."

Pipe cleaners, construction paper, yarn, eyes, and other craft materials were glued to some of the other spuds as the children had a great time creating their potato "pets" and "people." Krisko even made a few miniature sofas for those students who wished to turn theirs into "couch potatoes."

The nutritional value of the vegetable was also stressed and the children were given potato recipes to take home to their families. The three teachers spent some time preparing the potatoes in a variety of ways: French fries, baked potatoes, grating them for potato pancakes, and even using mashed potatoes for making potato candy.

The fun didn't stop here...relay teams were set up and the kindergarteners ran "potato" races. They had to keep a wary eye on their potatoes as they raced around the "potato man" with their spuds on spoons. One class used the sacks and ran a traditional "potato sack race."

All in all, Portage Area's "Potato Daze" proved to be fun as well as educational.

Mrs. Kent's class in the process of categorizing their potatoes. Nick Crum is deciding whether or not this spud is "big" or "little."

Kindergarten "Picassos"—Shane Noel, Ethan Stoker, and Robert Theys, making potato prints with a cut potato and tempera paints. Ethan remarks that "it's neat to do but a messy job."

York County Selects Glen Rock As Outstanding 4-H Club

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — For the fourth time in five years, the Glen Rock Community 4-H Club has been named York County's Outstanding club.

That announcement was the highlight of the annual York County 4-H Achievement Night, held October 5 at the 4-H Center. As part of their recognition, the club was presented with a beautifully-decorated sheet cake which members opted to freeze as a special treat for their own upcoming annual achievement awards program.

Glen Rock club's 32 members helped to compile an impressive scrapbook of club and community projects. They picked up litter along several rural roads of the area. For Valentine's Day, they made personalized favors for the young guests at New Life for Children. During the Irving Shoe Store's annual Shoe Drive for the Homeless, club members helped sort and size hundreds of pairs of donated shoes. To help fund these various projects, members staged several petting zoos at area community events.

Several of the Glen Rock club's members were among those 4-H'ers who received special recognition during the county awards programs, including two of the outstanding officer awards. Kelly Beard was honored as outstanding historian in the clubs, while Jay Rishel was honored as the outstanding secretary. Manheim Community Farm Show Wraps Up Lancaster County's Fair Season

Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Manheim Community Farm Show wrapped up the fair season in Lancaster County last weekend. Fair weather brought record crowds to the 42nd annual event with more than 4,000 exhibits and activities.

In opening ceremonies, Erin Huber was crowned queen and Lisa Witmer selected as first runnerup.

A senior at Manheim Central High School, Erin is the daughter of J. Larry and Carol Huber of Manheim.

Although Erin doesn't live on a farm, she does work on her grandparents' farm where she also raises FFA projects. She raises flowers, tobacco and prepares baked goods to enter in competition at the Manheim Farm Show.

Erin is chapter president and the county secretary for FFA. Although her career goal is subject to change, she leans toward preparing to teach agriculture or business.

In addition to livestock competition and exhibition of agricultural, homemakers, arts and crafts, and commercial products, activities included a baby parade, a farmer's fun nigh, tractor pulls, and a gospel concert.

Judge Tim Fleener and Farm Show Queen Erin Huber stand with showmanship winners of the Manheim Sheep Show. Kneeling are Ryan Donough and Jessica Schmidt. Jessica Stoltzfus stands in the center.

"Little Boy Blue Come Blow Your Horn," is portrayed by Shane Tyler Good in the Manheim Baby Parade. Only in this instance , Little Boy Blue contently sucks on the pacifyer inserted in his horn.

Two-month-old Shane Tyler Good, son of Todd and Marie Good of Manheim, is proud of his third-place ribbon earned in the baby parade.

October's Tried And True Lore

The oak leafs out before the ash;
We'll have a spring of wet and splash.
The ash leafs out before the oak;
We'll know a spring of fire and smoke.

October's seasonal folklore never does anything to change the weather.

October's warm start means that in the real world of insect pests, aphids and spider mites remain active throughout the month. They produce honeydew that attracts bald-faced hornets, yellow jackets and ants. Crickets, cluster flies, boxelder bugs, hackberry psyllids and spiders are seeking food, warmth and shelter in homes.

Control these pests with good garden sanitation. Remove plant debris, old leaves, and overgrown shrubs and clear weeds especially. Other controls include the use of water sprays, horticultural soaps or oils outdoors around the foundation of your home.

Leaf scorch is a very common sight in the landscape. The brown leaf edges are reminders of the dry summer months. The old needles (those closest to the trunk) on many needle evergreens (pines, spruce, arborvitae, etc.) are turning yellow and dropping. Needle drop is excessive this fall due to the drought. The needle drop from white pines is the most noticeable.

Premature defoliation and fall coloring is evident in other trees besides sycamore, dogwoods and tulip poplar. Although aggravated by the drought, some of these trees have other stress-related problems. Sugar maples are losing leaves before they turn a deep red and have some premature leaf loss on several branches in the crown of the tree. When you look closely at the tree trunk, you can see flat sides (no root flares) as well as girdling roots. If trees of the same species turn color prematurely or lose leaves before others in the same area, they are good candidates for close inspection. Is the soil compacted; are there wounds on the trunk; is sawdust evident; is there any evidence of mushrooms growing on the roots, trunk, or branches that would indicate root rot or other fungal problem? These trees need attention to prevent the problem from leading to plant loss in future years. Consult with a certified arborist or contact your Cooperative Extension Office.

Shrubs in the landscape that have been drought-stressed may be showing branch die-back from opportunistic fungi that have infected drought-weakened plants. Prune out the dead branches and make sure they go into the winter with a good supply of water in the soil.

Lastly, the wooly bears, wooly worms or blackened bears are now crossing our rural byways. But, in my frequent bike rides across Lancaster County, I see many fewer than in 1994. Can someone explain why they are always seen going perpendicular (across) the road?

Actually, these common October insects are actually the hairy caterpillar stage of the Isabella tiger moth. This insect overwinters just the way you see them in the Fall. It pupates in the Spring and flies across fields. And what color are the wooly bears you are seeing this year? Are they all orange, all black or mixed with a wider center band which is orange.

Since I see mostly orange caterpillars, it must have been a good summer with food a plenty. Or, maybe it's just the genetic variation in the Isabella moth or another species like the Great Leopard moth.

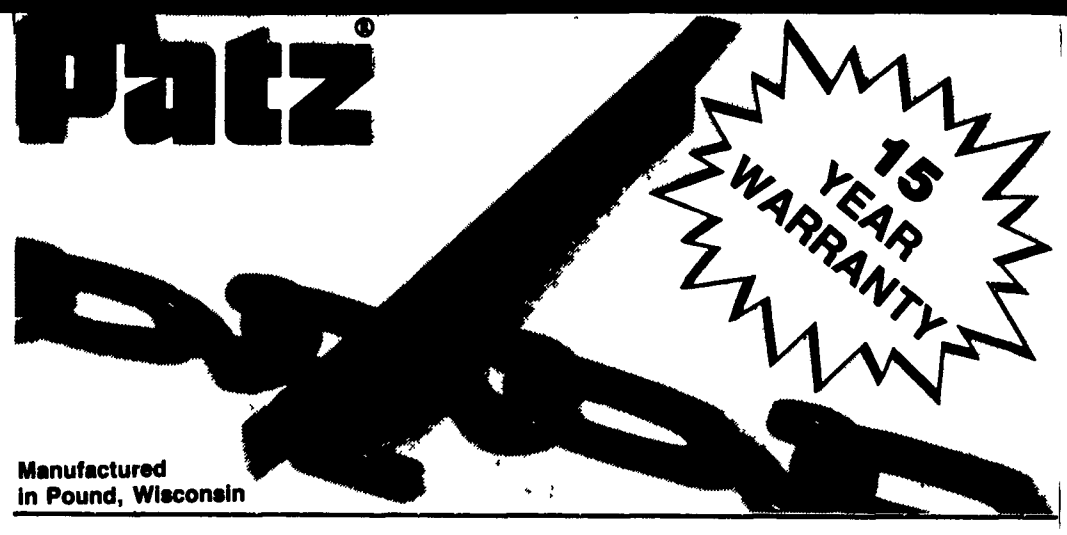
Patz®

15 YEAR WARRANTY



Manufactured in Pound, Wisconsin

Here is something often overlooked...

Only Patz gives you 45 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain, resulting in a chain so good that others are attempting to copy it.

Many Patz Gutter Cleaner chains are still working well after more than 30 years of use.

After the Patz patent on hook-and-eye chain expired, some other companies have attempted to copy the Patz chain. Some promote 10- and 12-year warranties on chain—but they have not yet had 10 or 12 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain.

Patz has continued to improve its chain for 45 years with special-formula steel, special forging techniques and special steel hardening processes.

Rely on the proven, long-life chain. Patz provides a 15-year chain warranty because so many chains are working well long after 15 years of use.

Better yet, your Patz chain warranty is backed up by a solid, reliable company that has been serving farmers for 45 years with the same family ownership.

Insist on Patz chain!

What thousands of dairyman know: Patz chain is your best buy!

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 9

Seven members of Society of Farm Women, Group 9, attended the Sept. meeting at St. Pauls U.C.C., Amityville. Hostess Helen Oxenford read the 23rd Psalm followed by the pledge of the Lord's prayer. Kathy Hafer has menu samples to make a Christmas party restaurant, but no decision was made, so the Program Committee will discuss their information, and make reservations for our party.

Tip Oxenford reported that about $40 remains in the Sunshine Fund. Under old business, Karen reported she had new by-law books. County Board reported a picnic in Bethel, the spring rally is in Somerset Co. The group will send a card to Fern Phillip's daughter, who has leukemia. The farm city banquet is Nov. 2. Berks Heim will have a Teddy Bear picnic—they will need hamburger makers. County convention cost is $12. Joan Hafer will help with silent auction and Karen is doing youth awards. Each group was asked to donate to the Ag Awareness program. The society will give $15. Karen will try to go to the Berks Heim Bingo—they are asking for $5 in quarters from each group for prizes. Karen shared program ideas with Cathy. Carol Stoudt, county secretary, took our picture. The meeting adjourned for food, a Silent Auction (made $36) and Bingo.

Berks Society 3

Group 3 of the Berks County Society of Farm Women held its September meeting at the home of Wendy Shane, Sweinhart Road, Boyertown. The program for the evening was "Getting your affairs in order."

A nominating committee was appointed for the upcoming election in November. A donation was made to the DARE program at the Earl Elementary School.

Six members of Group 3 attended the annual convention of the Berks County Society of Farm Women held at the Berks County Agricultural Center in Leesport on October 7.

Members surprised the hostess with a baby shower following the business meeting.

The next meeting will be a mystery dinner held at the home of Mayetta Shane, Valley Road, Boyertown, on October 24.

Strickler Receives Excellence Award

LEESPORT (Berks Co.)—Fay B. Strickler, extension home economist, Berks County, received the NAEHE Continued Excellence Award in Dallas, Texas on October 18. This award is presented by the National Association of Extension Home Economists.

Fay has already been awarded the Distinguished Service Award and has continued to be involved in professional improvement programs, the promotion of professional development of others, and leadership.

Collaborating and partnership with human service agencies, professional associations, and health-care institutions are the key to reaching new audiences and increasing participation in food and nutrition-related programs such as Safe Food Handlers Training, My New Weigh of Life, Spotlight on Food, Diabetes and Health and the EFNEP Program. After receiving grants totaling $10,000, thousands of at-risk disadvantaged youth learned to make better food choices by participating in the Big & Little Cooks-Cook Together Program. Fay has been an extension home economist for 22 years.

CHIMTEK™

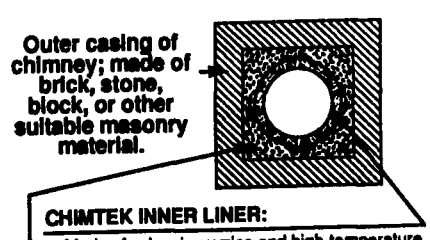
ADVANCED CHIMNEY TECHNOLOGY

SAFER: CHIMTEK is designed to withstand severe chimney fires without breaking or transmitting high temperatures to adjoining combustible materials.

LESS CREOSOTE: Wood smoke contains moisture (H_2O). When the smoke comes into contact with a surface under approx. 250 degrees F the water will condense to a liquid. This liquid combined with other products in wood smoke will result in creosote. Creosote can be very dangerous when it ignites. The inside of a CHIMTEK chimney stays much warmer and greatly reduces the amount of creosote formation. In many cases CHIMTEK chimneys are completely clean after years of use.

IMPROVES STOVE PERFORMANCE: The draft produced by a chimney is what pulls oxygen into the fire for combustion. The three main factors affecting draft are the chimney's height, size and temperature. CHIMTEK contains a great amount of a very special insulating material that is not affected by moisture saturation and will not seattle or deteriorate. Poor draft will result in poor combusion. Poor combusion will create more smoke. Smoke is wasted fuel. Newere EPA certified stoves are especially dependent on proper draft to perform properly.

A SURE SOLUTION TO MASONRY CHIMNEY PROBLEMS:



CHIMTEK INNER LINER:
- Made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements.
- Round shape provides even temperatures inside flue, and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gases.
- Highly resistant to thermal shock.
- Even if cracks should occur, the round shape and Chimtek Secondary Liner prevent pieces from falling into chimney.
- The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value.

CHIMTEK SECONDARY LINER:
- Provides exceptional insulation to make chimney more efficient and reduce heat transfer to combustible materials.
- Provides structural support for inner liner.
- Will not absorb moisture or creosote.

Banana Cream Pie

16 graham crackers, rolled fine
6 tablespoons melted butter
⅓ cup brown sugar

Mix together ingredients and press into 9-inch pie pan to form crust, save about ½ cup crumbs for topping if desired.

3 cups milk
2 eggs
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ to 1 teaspoon banana flavoring

Place 2½ cups milk in saucepan or double broiler, sprinkle in sugar. Do not stir. Bring to boiling, reduce heat and add the other ingredients which were mixed in blender. Stir until thickened. Cool slightly before pouring into pie shell. Slice 2 bananas on top. Sprinkle on crumbs and garnish with more banana.

1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
½ cup cold water
½ teaspoon almond or lemon extract

Mix together cornstarch, flour, sugar, and salt. Whip yolks of eggs in the ½ cup cold water and add to the dry mixture, mixing well. Add butter and the 2 cups boiling water, cook and stir constantly until it thickens. Remove from heat and add the extract and Kool-Aid and mix well. Pour into baked pie crust, using the egg whites for meringue.

½ cup sugar

Pour over cake. Let cool completely.

Mix 8-ounce container whipped cream topping with ½ cup coconut and spread over cake. Let set 8 hours. Store in refrigerator.

ANSWER — N. Shirk, Ephrata, wanted a recipe for pickles that are made in the sun. Thanks to a reader for sending the following recipe.

Sun Pickles

Use a wide mouth gallon jug.

Wash cucumbers thoroughly. Cut 4-6 inch cucumbers into ½ -inch slices. Fill the jar with cucumber slices. Add:

4 cloves garlic
4 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon dill seed

Fill the jar with water and place a crust of bread on top. Put the lid on and set outside in the sun for one week.

Drain, rinse well. Make a brine of the following:

4½ cups sugar
12 tablespoons vinegar
3 teaspoons mustard seed
3 teaspoons celery seed

Mix well. The brine will be thick. Spoon the brine over the cucumbers, replace lid and refrigerate.

Shake a few times to mix the sugar. Make sure lid is on tight as you shake it. May be eaten at once or will keep for months in the refrigerator.

1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

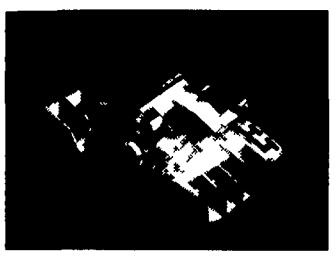
Thanks to Mary Fetter, Laceyville, for writing that her mother and grandmother made these rugs when she was a kid. Cut the nylons into 1½ -inch strips and the bread bags into 2-inch strips, cutting around the bag so that each bag makes one long strip. Tie the strips together with a square knot. Crochet the strips by using a single crochet stitch in either a back and forth pattern or around a circle.

ANSWER — A reader from Annville wanted to purchase a Little Golden Book called "Doctor Goat." Joseph Ray, R.R.2, Sunbury, PA 17801-9802, wrote that he has a book "Dr. Goat," but it is not a golden book. It was copyrighted 1950 by Whitman Publishing Co. Contact Ray if you want to buy it.



Easily adjust coulter depth on-the-go with a touch of your tractor's SCV lever or the fingertip controls of the 8000 Series Tractors' CommandARM™ (shown here). No need to leave your seat . . . simply choose any depth in a 5½-inch range to match your conditions.

Tack down residue, capture moisture. You'll retain up to 50-percent residue with standard concave, twisted shovels. They slice moisture-conserving grooves, blanketing the surface with a ribbon of soil.

For up to 65-percent residue retention, optional 2-inch chisel spikes shatter unyielding soil. Or, choose low-crown sweeps to cut moisture-grabbing grooves up to 6-inches deep, and leave as much as 80-percent residue in high-yielding corn.

Get the residue control you want in widths from 6 to 21 feet. Ask your John Deere dealer how to fine-tune your fields with a 714 Mulch Tiller.

Crank up tractors and other equipment with a 12-volt, Group 24, heavy-duty, 530-CCA battery for Case IH, Ford New Holland, Massey, and others. 120-amp reserve with a 40-month warranty. Regular $65.33.

The Performance Dairy Feed System

New Lancaster County Herd Soars With AIM™ Program

BRIAN K. FOX

Lititz, PA

"We started milking in October of 1994 and have fed Master Mix through Sensenig's Feed Mill from the start. We have been on test since November 1994 and our projected RHA after the first year is 23,151 lbs. We started using AIM™ in January 1995. By using it in the TMR and Top Dress, our cows improved by more than 12 pounds milk per cow per day.

Our salesperson has really helped us with all of the problems that we have had in the first year of farming on our own. We're looking forward to years of success with Master Mix and Sensenig's."

SOURCES OF EGGSHELL STRENGTH

Molecular And
Cell Biology
And Poultry Science

Dr. Carol V. Gay
Professor Of

The avian egg is a notably well-designed structure. Sources of eggshell strength include overall shape, shell membrane quality, and composition and design of the calcified shell.

At ovulation, a spherical yolk is literally engulfed by the funnel-shaped end of the oviduct (I've seen movies of this). During passage through the first 12-inch section of oviduct, called the magnum, the yolk is encapsulated in a thick mass of egg white. During passage down the loose, stretchable oviduct, the egg takes on its characteristic oblong shape.

Shape is a very important factor in eggshell strength. Since an egg is rounded in all directions, high stress points, where fractures would easily occur, are avoided.

Obviously, the strongest shape would be a perfect sphere. In fact, some birds, such as ostriches, humming birds and Japanese quail, lay more nearly spherical eggs. The spherical shape allows these birds to make thinner shelled eggs relative to egg size, conserving body materials.

Approximately two hours after ovulation, the egg has traversed the magnum and the white has completely formed. The egg then enters the isthmus region of the oviduct. In this region the shell membranes (there are two) are formed over the egg white, a process that takes about an hour and a half.

Shell membranes are well known to all who have peeled hard boiled eggs — I find it quite discouraging when trying to whip up a platter of grand-looking deviled eggs, to have the membranes so firmly attached to the white that whites get torn. (I would like to hear from readers who know of tricks to prevent this problem. Please call me at 814-865-6722.)

Shell membranes consist of a crisscrossed network of protein fibers that look like a multilayered filter when magnified 1,000X by a scanning electron microscope. These fibers are linked to each other by chemical bonds to form a very tough sheet. The shell membranes are thinner in older birds.

Upon entry into the shell gland, fluid is added through the shell membranes. This causes the egg white to swell and push the shell membranes into a fully distended position. Next, calcium carbonate is secreted by the shell gland. Clusters of calcium carbonate crystals form at fairly precise distances from each other on the outer surface of the shell membrane. From these clusters, columns of calcium carbonate grow outward and parallel to each other to form a calcified layer. Only microscopic spaces exist among the tightly packed columns of crystals. It is not known what controls the spacing of the first crystals formed from which the columns grow.

Finally, a layer of pigment followed by an impervious material, the cuticle, is laid down on the eggshell surface. The cuticle is microscopically thin and contributes very little to overall eggshell strength, but it is important for preventing dehydration.

The total time spent in the shell gland is 20 hours. The combination of shape and the integration of the several different layers of which the eggshell is comprised contribute to its strength.

It is interesting that reptiles such as turtles and snakes form eggs by a similar process. However, their eggs are not calcified. Instead, the shell membranes are thicker and have a leather-like composition.

It might be possible to select, by genetic manipulation, hens that make substantially thicker shell membranes so that the thickness of the calcified portion would be a less critical factor in overall eggshell strength.

Tough Growing Year Requires Harvest Management

COLUMBUS, Ohio—An early killing frost in late September slammed the last nail in the coffin of what was a very tough growing season for Ohio's corn growers, said an Ohio State University agronomist.

In some cases, the Sept. 23 freeze in northwest Ohio was irrelevant given that much of the corn had prematurely died under the combined stresses of late-season drought and leaf diseases, namely gray leaf spot, said Peter Thomison.

"The plants just shut down and died with kernels prematurely forming the black layer stage," he said.

Producers will see the combined effects of the season's stresses as they begin to combine their fields, requiring extra management to handle the damaged and high-moisture corn.

Yield losses from freeze damage depend on how much stalk tissue was killed as related to the stage of kernel development. Stalks that are green after a frost can mobilize sugars from the stalk to the ear for continued kernel development. However, some fields didn't have that chance because stresses damaged stalks, which depleted the green color.

Thomison said in the worst cases of freeze damage, fields in the fully dented stage could have had up to 31 percent yield loss, although those cases were probably rare. The likelihood was greater that corn was in the late dent stage, which would result in a 4 percent to 8 percent yield loss because of the freeze.

Prepare For Winter Grain Planting

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The decisions made between now and the time winter grains are planted play a major role in determining the performance of these crops, said a Penn State agronomist.

"Most of the decisions that affect grain yield should be made well in advance of planting," said Dr. Elwood Hatley, professor of agronomy in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "These decisions involve site and variety selection, seed treatment, tillage, planting dates and seeding rates."

Site selection is extremely important when planting winter crops. Winter grains, especially barley, should be planted in well-drained fields. When planted in poorly drained soils, these crops are subject to excessive winter kill. "Winter wheat also should not follow wheat in crop rotations," Hatley said. "This can lead to diseases, such as the root disease known as 'take all'."

It's best to choose winter grain varieties that have high yield potential and disease resistance. Variety performance reports are published annually by Penn State's agronomy department and by universities in surrounding states. "Use as much of this information as possible when selecting new varieties," Hatley said.

Seed- and soil-borne diseases can reduce yields of winter wheat and barley. "This is especially true for wheat seedings this fall, because Fusarium head scab and Septora glume blotch have been present in a large portion of the state," Hatley said. "Other diseases affecting winter crops include seed decays, seedling blights, and loose and covered smuts."

To protect against these and other diseases, seeding should not be done before recommended planting dates, and seed treatments should contain both a protectant fungicide and a systemic fungicide. "Protectant fungicides increase yields, improve seedling vigor and eliminate covered smut in wheat and barley," Hatley said.

"Treatment with the proper systemic fungicide eliminates loose smut and covered smut of wheat and barley and prevents damage from seed decay and seedling blights."

A uniform seed placement of 1.0 to 1.5 inches deep also is important for successful winter grain production. "Some tillage is required to assure that your equipment is placing the seed at a uniform depth," Hatley said, "Growers also need to adjust their equipment's planting speed to match soil conditions. Excessive planting speeds increase the amount of variability in seeding depth and lead to lower yields."

Seeding density for winter grains should be adjusted to produce between 1.2 and 1.5 million plants per acre. "This means your equipment should deposit 18 to 20 seeds, with 90 percent germination, per foot of row when seeding in 7-inch rows," Hatley said. "If you are planting past recommended dates, the germination rate will be lower and you'll need to increase the seeding rate up to 30 percent."

For information about planting dates and other considerations for winter grains, consult the "Penn State Agronomy Guide." The 214-page publication contains detailed information on corn, grain sorghum, soybeans for grain, small grains and forage crops. Included are sections on pest management, soil fertility management, crop storage and erosion control.

The guide is available for $7 from the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county or from the Publications Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-6713.

Penn State Offers Odor Control Info

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Recent population figures suggest that a life in the country is drawing a growing number of people to rural Pennsylvania. As more nonfarm residents move into agricultural areas, complaints about odors from dairy, poultry and other livestock enterprises are increasing.

However, farmers do have options. "Some odor control techniques cost nothing but time and can be extremely effective in preventing odors," said Jeannie Leggett, extension assistant in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Odor Control for Animal Operations," a new fact sheet available free from the college, outlines practical and technology-based options to help control odors and minimize complaints about livestock operations. Leggett wrote the fact sheet with Dr. Robert Graves, professor of agricultural engineering.

Animal housing facilities, manure, improperly handled carcasses or decaying organic matter all can generate foul smells. These odors can be absorbed and transported by dust or spread through the air as a gas, giving rise to complaints from neighbors.

Sound management practices, careful site selection and communication with your neighbors may be your best and least expensive ways to prevent odor complaints, she said.

Sometimes it is easier to prevent odor complaints than it is to stop odors themselves. Visual buffers such as a row of trees around manure ponds and spreading areas may help reduce the number of complaints.

"Be sure to open lines of communication with the community," Leggett said, "Let your nonfarm neighbors know that you are concerned about odors and would like to work with them to understand and solve the problem."

A little community outreach can go a long way, but stopping odors before they become a nuisance may be necessary if courtesy fails. "Good housekeeping is your best defense against odor generation," Leggett said. "Clean up spilled feed, silage and manure in hard-to-reach areas. Keep animals clean and dispose of carcasses promptly and properly."

Some control methods are designed to keep odors within the farm boundary, where they are less likely to disturb neighbors. The fact sheet discusses the advantages and disadvantages of several options, including composting, adding a biofilter to the ventilation system, and manure additives.

"Odor Control for Animal Production Operations," fact sheet G-79, is available now. Several related fact sheets also are available from Penn State, including "On-Farm Composting," "Farm Composting: Plan Now to Avoid Problems Later" and "Farm Composting for Profit."

To obtain copies or to receive a list of all fact sheets offered by the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering, write to the Agricultural and Biological Engineering Extension Office, The Pennsylvania State University, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-7685.

Penn State Block and Bridle Club

NOTES FROM THE PENN STATE BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB

This monthly feature to Lancaster Farming is provided by members of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club for B&B alumni, friends of the Department of Dairy and Animal Science, and the readership of Lancaster Farming.

September

September events included social, intramural, Ag Student Council, and livestock judging activities, which made for an extremely busy month for the Penn State Block and Bridle Club. A well-attended, regularly scheduled meeting kicked off the month followed by the annual fall picnic and an evening playing broomball.

Attendees at the picnic enjoyed a hamburger cookout, volleyball, and touch football on a Sunday afternoon at the Beef and Sheep Center. Two days later, members who still had enough energy showed up at the Penn State ice rink for a bruising, two-hour, hard-fought battle of broomball, leaving many participants exhausted and a few injured. Members had ample time to heal before another regular meeting, Ag Hill Olympics, and the beginning of two important seasons: intramural softball and livestock judging!

The regular meeting covered committee reports, national meeting details, and a program that consisted of summer internship experiences by students. Two days later, a four man team consisting of Jay Brehm, Scott Brown, Scott Myers, and Tadd Burch led Block & Bridle to a third place finish at the annual Ag Hill Olympics. Bale throwing, wheelbarrow racing, and shelling corn by hand highlighted the day's events.

While the Nittany Lion football team struggled in a loss to Wisconsin, B&B teams had great starts to their respective seasons. The intramural men's softball team finished September undefeated with a record of 4-0, while the livestock judging team finished first at the Eastern National in Timonium, Md.

This year's livestock judging team, led by coach Keith Bryan, includes Kim Black, Jay Brehm, Scott Brown, Brian Hrutkey, Chris Kling, Brian McAllister, Todd Rabenold and Jen Sweitzer.

October

Unlike the Penn State football team that suffered another setback against Ohio State in October, the intramural softball team continued their winning ways until hitting a roadblock in the intramural championship semifinals.

Led by team co-captains Josh Molnar and Scott Myers, the team finished the season with a 6-1 record.

Club members assisted with the Keystone International Livestock Exposition's livestock judging contest. The club provided animal holders and movers for 12 classes of livestock throughout the morning judging session on Oct. 7.

Matt Zerby and Bill Beinlich, co-chairmen of the livestock committee, organized the club's efforts for this event.

Another regular meeting was held on Oct. 5 and included committee reports, finalizing plans for the National meeting, the start of the fall sausage sale, and speaker Fadok Shabi, who talked about Israeli agriculture, is a Ph.D. student at Penn State and was graduated from the Hebrew University in Israel.

Members received word that one of the department's secretaries had to bear considerable "out-of-pocket" expenses for health care. The club "passed-the-hat" and collected more than $200 to help defray costs of her health care.

The annual B&B fall meat sale has been expanded slightly to include three items: pork sausage and two sizes of beef summer sausage.

Two-pound packages of pork sausage are available for $3.50, and the "beef sticks" are available in either small ($3.50 for 14 ounces) or large ($6.50 for 2 pounds) sizes. Any member of B&B would be happy to take your order. The incentives for this fall's sale include dinner for the winning team of five and complimentary tickets to the Christmas semiformal for the two high salespersons.

Plans are under way to continue the busy semester schedule for club members. A new intramural season started recently for co-ed and men's flag football teams. On Saturday, Oct. 21, a few Executive Committee members will discuss B&B programs and undergraduate student life with juniors and seniors in high school who will be on campus for the annual Department of Dairy and Animal Science Open House for Prospective Students. The club is also planning a Halloween Party and pig roast on Oct. 28.

November

Finally, plans are coming together for club members to attend the 76th National Block and Bridle Club Meeting in Louisville, Ky., from Nov. 9-12.

This year's National Meeting will be hosted by the University of Kentucky and will be held in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition.

The meeting will be special since our very own Dr. Harold Harpster is up for election for national B & B secretary. Other events scheduled for later in the semester include the annual Christmas semiformal and trying to secure a stretch of highway in Centre County for Pennsylvania's Adopt-A-Highway program.

For more information concerning activities of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club, contact Keith Bryan at (814) 863-0569.

To Chop Or Not To Chop?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Now is the time when farmers are considering options for postharvest management of leftover cornstalks and other crop residue. And the question many are asking is, "To chop or not to chop?"

Before deciding whether to chop cornstalks or leave them intact, several factors should be considered, said Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Proper management of crop residue has become widely accepted as a means to reduce soil erosion. To keep as much residue as possible on fields, Hoffman generally recommends leaving cornstalks alone. If chopped, he said, the smaller pieces may be blown or washed away by wind or rain.

But there are circumstances in which chopping may be the best option. "If you plan to use secondary tillage equipment, such as a field cultivator or harrow, after planting in the spring, you'll probably want to chop the cornstalks," Hoffman said.

"A lot of secondary tillage tools don't have enough clearance to allow those uncut stalks to pass through without plugging up the machinery," he said. "But if the stalks won't present a problem with secondary tillage, I'd recommend you leave them alone."

If you use a corn-picker to harvest your corn, cutting the stalks also might help to distribute the material more uniformly over the field. "But if you use a combine," said Hoffman, "it usually will shred the stalks enough to give you reasonably uniform distribution without chopping them."

Some farmers who chop their cornstalks in the fall perform some type of tillage operation to partially cover the cut stalks and keep them in place. But Hoffman said there are risks in that practice. "You have to be careful that you don't violate the conservation plan assigned to the farm or to that particular field," he said. "You have to be aware of and follow normal erosion control measures."

Hoffman said some farmers chop cornstalks thinking that it will help control insects such as corn borers. But he said that's not necessarily true. "We've never been able to demonstrate that chopping the stalks reduces the number of insects enough to have an effect on next year's production."

If you plan to use a no-till drill to plant alfalfa or oats in the early spring, then you are better off not cutting leftover cornstalks, according to Hoffman. "When there's still a little frost and the stalks are stuck fast to the ground, you get less plugging of the no-till drill when the stalks are left intact," he said.

Northeast Ag Program Looks For Innovative Ideas

BURLINGTON, Vt.—Applications are available for The Northeast Region Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) Program's 1996 Farmer/Grower Grants Program. The region will award up to $100,000 in grants to farmers to try innovative production and marketing systems.

The grants will be awarded on a competitive basis to farmers throughout the 12-state region. Projects may involve small research trials, educational activities and demonstrations. Project activities should promote good stewardship of natural resources, prevent agricultural pollution, improve farm profitability and/or enhance quality of life.

Last year, 38 grants were awarded. They ranged in size from $325 to $5,571. Grants must be under the direction of at least one producer, although collaboration with other producers and other members of the agricultural community is strongly encouraged.

Grant applications are available from the Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education Program, Hills Building, University of Vermont, Burlington, VT, 05405 0082. Application deadline is December 15, 1995.

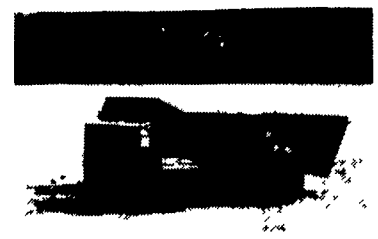
New Model To Spreader Line

BRODHEAD, Wis.—Knight Manufacturing Corporation has introduced the new 8014 ProTwin Slinger. This new side discharge spreader is available as a single or tandem axle unit.

The struck level capacity is 1,400 gallons or approximately 300 bushels heaped.

The patented twin auger design features a 20 inch left auger that moves material forward to 12 forged-steel discharge hammers.



This new side discharge spreader is available as a single or tandem axle unit.

The struck level capacity is 1,400 gallons or approximately 300 bushels heaped.

The slightly raised 18 inch right auger moves material rearward while keeping the left auger evenly charged with material, reducing pressure and overloading of material at the front of the machine.

The 8014 joins the 8018, 8024, and 8030 ProTwin models with capacities ranging from 1,240 to 3,080 gallons. These units handle the heaviest pen pack material with ease.

Company Allowed Patent Claims

DEKALB, Ill.—Dekalb Genetics Corporation said that it has received notice of allowance from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office for claims to corn cells that have been transformed via electroporation technology.

Electroporation, a method of introducing foreign genes into corn cells with an electrical pulse, in an alternative to introducing foreign genes with a gene gun.

"Electroporation is a viable means of producing genetically transformed, fertile corn plants, and we expect these patent claims to offer licensing opportunities," said Bruce P. Bickner, Dekalb's chairman and chief executive officer. "These claims are also significant because they broaden the scope of a patent on the electroporation process to make transgenic corn that Dekalb received earlier in the year."

In January 1995, Dekalb was awarded a U.S. patent (#5,384,253) for a method of producing genetically transformed corn with electroporation. The two patent claims go hand in hand, covering both the electroporation method itself and the resulting transformed cells that make up a corn plant.

Separately, Dekalb announced it has recently been awarded patent #5,445,961 for a method of producing fertile corn plants from microspores, which are immature pollen grains. Microspores are an important target for transformation because they enable direct selection of recessive traits and reduce the number of subsequent breeding steps to develop commercial corn hybrids. "This patent reflects another aspect of our patent portfolio, which includes some of the technologies—such as tissue culture—that underlie genetic engineering," Bickner said.

Case Elects Two To Directors

RACINE, Wis.—Case Corporation recently elected Thomas N. Urban, chairman and chief executive officer of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., and Jeffrey T. Grade, chairman and chief executive officer of Harnischfeger Industries, Inc., to its board of directors.

"We are extremely pleased to add directors the stature of Tom Urban and Jeff Grade," said Jean-Pierre Rosso, Case president and chief executive officer. "Tom and Jeff's backgrounds make them ideal candidates for Case's board and I am confident both will be assets to us as we seek to further improve our performance and prospects."

Urban has served in executive positions with Pioneer since 1974 and was appointed chairman and chief executive officer of the $1.5 billion seed company in 1984. He is retiring from Pioneer and has announced plans to teach at the Harvard Business School. Urban, who has both undergraduate and MBA degrees from Harvard, also serves as a director of Equitable of Iowa Companies and Sigma Aldrich.

Grade has been chairman and chief executive officer of Harnischfeger since 1993. He is also a director of Coeur D'Alene Mines Corporation, Crucible Materials Corporation, and Measurex Corporation.

With the addition of Urban and Grade, the Case board has now expanded to eight members.

Cargill To Distribute Insect-Resistant Hybrids

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Cargill Hybrid Seeds and Mycogen Plant Sciences have entered into a distribution agreement through which Cargill dealers will distribute Mycogen's NatureGard™ insect-resistant hydrid seed corn for planting in 1996.

On Aug. 8, Mycogen received Environmental Protection Agency approval to market corn hybrids genetically engineered with a Bt gene to produce a protein that protects them from both first and second brood European corn borer. Cargill will distribute the first of these new hybrids, NG7059, under the Mycogen label.

James Hopkins, vice president and general manager of Mycogen Plant Sciences, said that Cargill's strong distribution network in the western corn belt, where corn borer damage costs farmers hundreds of millions of dollars in yield losses each year, makes the distribution arrangement attractive to Mycogen.

"This will enable us to bring these new insect-resistant products to more farmers sooner than we could working alone," Hopkins said.

Mackey, Pfund To Head Genetics Research

DEKALB, Ill.—Dekalb Genetics Corporation announced today that Catherine Mackey and John Pfund have both been promoted to the position of vice president, research, and will together lead the company's integrated seed research organization.

Previously, Mackey was director of Dekalb's Discovery Research, the company's biotechnology program, and Pfund was director, research, heading up Dekalb's conventional corn breeding program in the 110RM and earlier maturities.

Under the new structure, Mackey and Pfund will share responsibility for Dekalb's corn breeding stations worldwide. Mackey will also continue to head biotechnology research and Pfund will also lead research for soybean, sorghum, alfalfa, and sunflower.

Pfund joined Dekalb in 1975 as a corn breeder and has served in positions of increasing responsibility. In 1989, he was named associate research director and he then became director of agronomic services in 1993. In 1994, he was promoted to a director of research. Pfund earned his doctorate and a master of science degree in plant breeding from the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

Mackey joined the company as a laboratory research scientist in 1982 and advanced through the biotechnology research organization. She was named director of Discovery Research in 1990. Mackey received her doctorate in molecular genetics from Cornell University.

Ag Secretary Alerts Consumers To Firewood Regs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—When buying firewood, consumers should be careful to make sure they don't get stuck with the short end of the stick, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

"Firewood must be sold by the cord, or some fraction thereof," Brosius said. "Consumers should be aware that the amount of firewood they're buying must conform to a specific measurement standard."

A cord of firewood must equal 128 cubic feet. For example, a neatly stacked rack of firewood measuring 4 feet high, 4 feet deep, and 8 feet long would measure 128 cubic feet, thus constituting a cord. One-half cord would measure 64 cubic feet.

Suppliers of firewood must provide buyers with an invoice listing the full name and address of the supplier, along with the amount paid.

Small bundles of firewood sold at campgrounds or retail stores must be sold by the cubic foot. Invoices are not required for these sales.

The department's Bureau of Ride and Measurement Standards is responsible for the regulation of quantity in firewood sales.

For more information about the sale of firewood, or to register a complaint against a supplier, contact the department's Bureau of Ride and Measurement Standards, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408, (717) 787-9089.

Governor Requests Aid For Md. Farmers

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Governor Parris N. Glendening requested a disaster designation for farmers in 12 Maryland counties who have suffered an estimated 40 percent or more in crop losses this summer because of drought and heat in July and August.

Crop losses were particularly bad in soybeans and corn for grain. The counties Governor Glendening has requested help for are Wicomico, Worcester, Somerset, Dorchester, Talbot, Queen Anne's, Caroline, St. Mary's, Charles, Calvert, Anne Arundel, and Prince George's.

The governor made his request in a letter forwarded to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman after receiving county-by-county damage assessment reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consolidated Farm Service Agency.

"I am asking Secretary Glickman to declare portions of Maryland a disaster for the purpose of qualifying hundreds of hard-hit Maryland farmers for low-interest emergency loans from the U.S. Department of Agriculture," said Glendening.

The Maryland State Emergency Board of the U.S. Department of Agriculture prepared the damage estimates after Governor Glendening asked for detailed damage reports on Sept. 27.

If the requested counties are designated disaster areas, farmers in adjoining counties who suffered significant crop losses would also qualify for U.S. Department of Agriculture loan programs.

Most recently, Maryland farmers were hit with a drought in 1993 that resulted in a disaster declaration for farmers in 15 Maryland counties.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress. INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

NO USED SILOS!
NO REBUILT SILOS!
NO PRE-OWNED SILOS!
ALL NEW FOR YOU.

Unique central spiral circulator
No bearings inside the mixer drum

Fewer working parts make the Patz Tumble Mixer reliable (only 3 grease fittings).

As the drum rotates, the central spiral circulator moves feed to the back of the mixer. At the same time, the fliting bolted to the drum in a spiral design move the feed to the front as it mixes with a tumbling action.

Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850

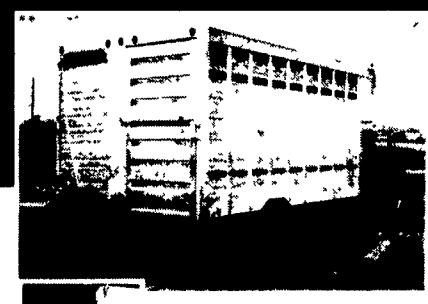
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Farm City Festival A Hit

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Second Annual Farm City Day Festival was once again a hit, with kids of all ages joining in the fun.

More than 1,100 people attended the Adams County Farm City Festival and Farm Open House held at Getty Acres Holstein Farm, owned by Larry and Doris Wilkinson, Ed and Tina Wilkinson, and Dan and Laurie Wilkinson and families.

The Festival was held to reach the general public and educate them about current agricultural practices and our basic need for agriculture.

During the day, kids could visit the petting zoo, and could also enjoy free pony rides, apple bobbing, face painting, and balloons. Meanwhile the adults could visit the displays and exhibits presented by county commodity groups.

Adams County Apple Queen Kristin Johnson, Adams County Beef Queen Emily Miller, and Adams County Dairy Princess Julie Zepp were all there to promote the benefits of animal products to consumers and to hand out promotional goodies to the kids.

There were also antique tractors, an emu display, and a mulch hay/mushroom industry exhibit.

Children could also register to participate in tug-of-war, pedal tractor pulls, and a pie eating contest. There was even a milk carton boat race contest for kids who brought their own milk carton boats. A celebrity milking contest was held with local radio personalities and Adams County commissioners vying for the coveted title of champion milker. The grand finale of the day was a cow chip bingo held in the Wilkinson's field, for which people could purchase tickets throughout the day.

Everyone could travel on an educational hay-wagon ride to see the crops produced on the Wilkinson farm and visit the Wilkinson's milking parlor, dairy housing facilities, feeding facilities, and manure handling facilities. During this hayride, tour guides explained conservation practices, crop rotation, and other general cropping practices. Participants could also see modern farm machinery, ranging from tractors and harvesting equipment to tractor-trailers.

Throughout the day, Adams County food commodities were available at the concession stand. There was also live music presented by Ray Owens. This event was co-sponsored by the Adams County Farm-City Week Committee, Adams County Farm Bureau, Kiwanis Club of Historic Gettysburg, Gettysburg/Adams County Chamber of Commerce, and the Upper Adams Jaycees.

MMI Announces Insurance Program

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), the nation's third largest dairy cooperative, announced it was introducing a new Blue Cross/Blue Shield health insurance program for farmers.

"We designed it specifically for dairy farmers after asking them what they wanted and needed," said Anthony Schlesier, MMI's manager of cooperative relations.

According to Schlesier, some of the program's highlights include a comprehensive medical plan, 16-month rate guarantee, $2.5 million lifetime maximum benefits, more than double the norm, $300 accident supplement, optional high deductible, maternity covered as any other illness, special toll free MMI number for insurance help, and a prescription drug card.

Health insurance is one of the benefits of being a member of the co-op, Schlesier said. He added that the program was being administered by a service organization devoted solely to working with cooperatives and their members.

MMI is the region's largest dairy producer-owned cooperative and the 73rd largest U.S. food company. Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI is owned by 9,000 dairy farm families in an 11-state area , including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New York, West Virginia, Massachusetts, Vermont and Delaware.

In fiscal year 1995, MMI marketed and processed more than 7.1 billion pounds or 824 million gallons of milk and generated revenues of just over $1 billion.

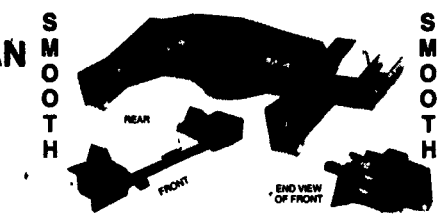
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE

SMOOTH



SMOOTH

Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy and GMC truck models Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

JUMBO BALES

A Case International 8580 large rectangular baler makes JUMBO bales - up to 2,000 pounds.

Buy at Old Price Savings

It compresses hay equivalent to about 40 conventional bales into a single high-density package. The high-end capacity and performance of the 8580 means you can push these big bales through the machine all day — every day. That's a lot of hay!

And it's quality hay, too. The center-line design handles the crop gently to preserve nutritious leaves. The bales are uniformly shaped for efficient handling and shipping.

The 8580 also has a full list of standard features. Low-profile pickup, pre-packed chamber, massive gearbox, heavy-duty components throughout, electronic monitoring, double-tie knotters and low maintenance. And it's simple to operate. The Case International 8590 is a JUMBO value, too.

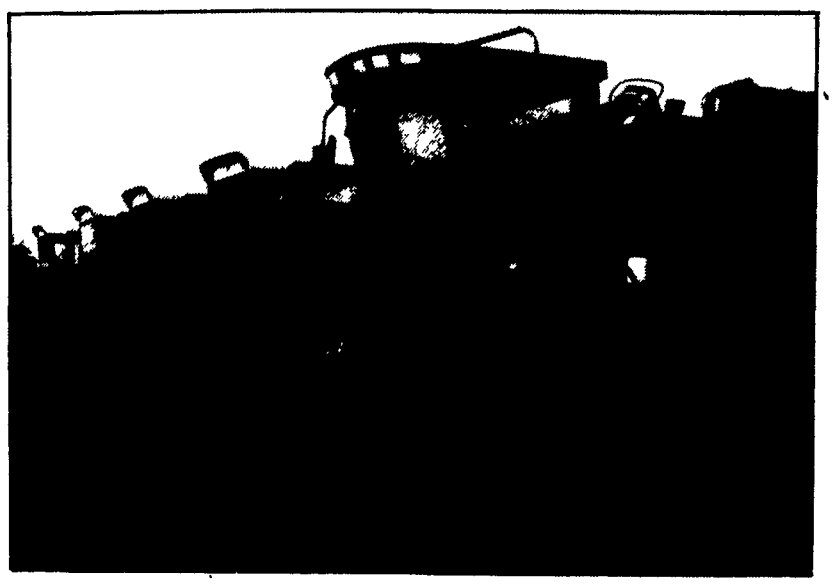
CASE IH Axial Flow Combines - PRODUCTIVITY NEVER THOUGHT POSSIBLE!

The 2100 Series Axial Flow Combines are simply designed to harvest crops in record-settimg time. Who would have ever believed that results like these would ever be possible?



- Harvest 805 Acres of corn and 52 Acres of Soybeans in 100 Hours.
- Harvest 13.3 Acres of Corn that Averaged 160 Bushels per Acre in One Hour.
- All with very little field loss.

You can accomplish similar results when you purchase a new 2100 series combine from Hoobers - the people who know how to get maximum productivity from your combine...

Demand for 2100 Series has led to many late Model Trades - both Axial Flow and John Deere. If you can not afford a new combine, check out our great selection of pre-owned machines. We have a machine to fit your operation and budget.

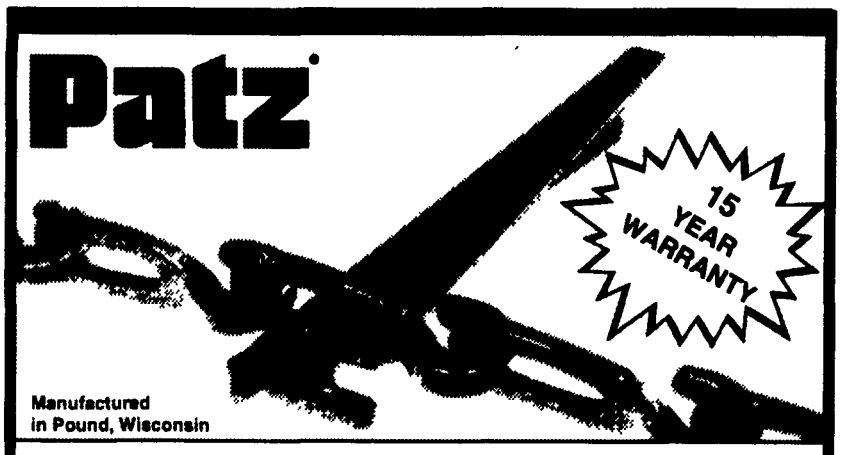
Patz



Manufactured in Pound, Wisconsin

Here is something often overlooked...

Only Patz gives you 47 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain, resulting in a chain so good that others are attempting to copy it.

Many Patz Gutter Cleaner chains still working well after more than 30 years of use.

After the Patz patent on hook-and-eye chain expired, some other companies have attempted to copy the Patz chain Some promote 10- and 12-year warranties on chain—but they have not yet had 10 or 12 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain

Patz has continued to improve its chain for 47 years with special-formula steel, special forging techniques and special steel hardening processes.

Rely on the proven, long-life chain. Patz provides a written 15-year chain warranty because so many chains are working well long after 15 years of use.

Better yet, your chain warranty is backed up by a solid, reliable company that has been serving farmers for 47 years with the same family ownership.

Insist on Patz chain!

What thousands of dairyment know:
Patz chain is your best buy!

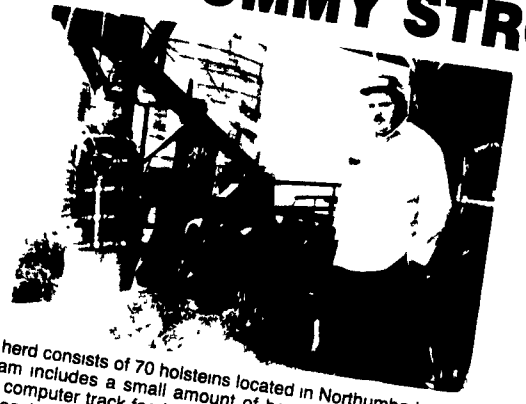
Performance Update

The Strouse's were featured in a Purina ad last year when their RHA reached 24,000 lbs., but since that time, production has continued to climb. The past years production increase is listed below:

PURINA SALUTES TOM and TOMMY STROUSE



The Strouses herd consists of 70 holsteins located in Northumberland county The feeding program includes a small amount of hay, haylage, and grain, which is delivered by a computer track feeder The major ingredients in the grain mix are shelled corn, roasted soybeans, and PURINA HI-E 31% UIP concentrate The Strouses first fed Purina in July 1988 Since then the results are as follows

DATE	# COWS	LBS. MILK	RHA	%BF	LBS. FAT	DIM
7/88	61	60.2	19690	3.9	768	193
8/89	61	66.6	21718	3.8	828	188
8/90	62	67.5	23097	3.7	855	181

8/94	68	75.5	23879	3.8	918	172

TOM'S COMMENTS:

"BEFORE WE STARTED WITH PURINA, WE WERE AT A STAND STILL."

PURINA MILLS would like to thank the Strouses for ... and wishes them ...

Date	Cows	% Days	RHA	%BF	#BF	%Prot.	#Prot
9/11/94	67.2	87.3	23879	3.8%	918	3.2%	764
3/12/95	62.8	89.5	27243	3.8%	1042	3.2%	862

The feeding Program includes Haylage, hay, dry shelled corn, roasted soybeans, and HI E 31 UIP concentrate from Purina. When ask what has contributed to the increase, Tommy credits the quality of Heifers that have come into the herd. One example is a 2 yr. old that has 29561 lbs. milk. 1034 lbs. fat and 867 lbs. prot. at 305 days. (she is still milking 93 lbs.)

Another cow that Tommy pcinted out was a 4 yr. old that had 31941 lbs. milk, 1289 lbs. BF, and 1047 lbs. Protein.

Good quality forages, lots of ventilation, excellent management, and Purina products have provided the right combination for the Strouses. Purina Congratulates them, and wishes them continued success.
